END OF ROOSEVELT'S CROSS EXAMINATION

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Syracuse, April 28.—The cross-examination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt in the $50,000 libel suit brought by William Barnes was completed this morning.

"That's all," said William M. Ivins at 10:44, after the colonel had admitted making certain speeches throughout New York last October attacking Barnes and alleging his combination with Charles Murphy.

The 45 minutes during which Roosevelt was under cross-examination today was taken up with the colonel's admission in ringing tones, whenever he got a chance to repeat his words that he accused Barnes and Murphy of taking from the people the right to govern themselves.

The plaintiff failed to go back to the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company deal and the failure of the colonel to order the prosecution of the New Haven under the Sherman act.

The cross-examination, among other things, brought out that Colonel Roosevelt while governor of New York, vice president and president of the U. S., considered T. C. Platt to be the "boss" of the Republican organization and consulted him as such; that his campaign committee in 1914 accepted a campaign fund of millions from various trust magnates; that none of the corporations, the heads of which contributed to the fund, were prosecuted under the Sherman act while Roosevelt was president.

Syracuse, April 28.—After testifying approximately 33 hours in which time he has told of consulting "Boss" Platt while governor, vice president and president of the United States; has told of a campaign fund of millions donated by trust magnates and calmly admitted his leading role in the steel corporation-Tennessee Coal and Iron Company absorption, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, vigorous and full of "pep" as ever, was not nearly through his amazing talk. Marathon when he resumed the witness stand today in the $50,000 libel suit of William Barnes. He was as fresh as though he had not undergone a severe grueling under the cross-examination of William Ivins, chief counsel for Barnes. It is believed Ivins would finish with the ex-president by noon, or at least drop the cross-examination from sheer exhaustion, trusting to the re-cross to catch up the loose ends.

The release of the fiery witness by the plaintiff, however, means no rest for the colonel. Immediately he will pass into the hands of John M. Bowers, his leading counsel for re-direct examination.

The re-direct examination will be at great length, for the defense will go far to counteract the force of the Platt letters. It is freely said here, whether true or not that those letters were a complete surprise to the colonel. It is asserted by the Barnes adherents that the ex-president was confident that the assistant senator would have destroyed his letter files for his own protection if for no other reason.

The campaign fund and steel corporation portions of the cross-examination will be touched upon lightly, as little was brought out by Ivins that already was not known to the public.

The re-direct examination of Mr. Roosevelt will be limited only by the peremptory censorship of Mr. Bowers, for the defendant has an endless chain of things he is anxious to talk about. Each night after adjournment of court the colonel has handed his chief counsel sheet of foolscap paper, closely written with things the colonel overlooked or was not allowed to tell, which he begs Mr. Bowers to tell him get at on the re-direct examination.

Naturally the re-cross-examination of the chief witness will cover everything in the re-direct and possibly there may be a re-re-direct and re-re-cross. Lawyers in the celebrated case today were still at a loss to make an estimate of the length of time the colonel will be on the stand, altogether, and when asked how long the trial would last they drew up their hands.

"This trial will last all summer," Mr. Bowers exclaimed late yesterday when Mr. Ivins started on a new tack.

"It will," agreed Mr. Ivins, with his courtly bow "but we did not start this case."

"Oh, yes you did," retorted Mr. Bowers.

Opening of court was delayed by a conference of attorneys with Justice William S. Andrews concerning the testimony to be introduced concerning the state printing business at Albany. No ruling was announced.

Without being called Col. Roosevelt walked to the stand and Mr. Ivins resumed the cross-examination.

"Did you," he asked, "make a speech in October, 1914, at Hudson Falls?"

"Objection," said Mr. Bowers. "That speech was made after the one on which this suit is based."

"Overruled," said Justice Andrews.

"I do not know," said Mr. Roosevelt. "Where is Hudson Falls?"

"I am not a geographer," retorted Mr. Ivins.

"Well, I made a lot of speeches," said the witness.

"Read this one," said Mr. Bowers.

Hitler lines are gone. The lines are drawn between the Hennessey and anti-Murphy Democrats and the Barnes men and anti-Barnes Democrats?"

"I did," said the colonel. Mr. Ivins started to ask the witness about another speech referring to the McCall campaign.

"I object," began Mr. Bowers. "Sustained," said the court. Bowers misunderstood.

"Just a moment, Your Honor," and he broke off amid the laughter of the colonel and the other lawyers. The trend of the morning cross-examination by Ivins was to put in evidence several political speeches made by Roosevelt in the fall of 1914 attacking Barnes and alleging a combination between Barnes and Murphy.

On objection by Bowers, Justice Andrews ruled out two questions about a speech by Roosevelt at Malone, N. Y., in which the colonel asserted that Barnes's man Whitman was a powerful factor in Tammany's effort to elect Edward E. McCall mayor of New York and referring to the Barnes-Murphy support of Governor Glynn.

"Did you make a speech at Saratoga Springs, October 7, 1914, in which you said: 'Barnes Republicans came to the aid of Stillwell and Murphy Democrats aided Allds'?"

"I did," said the colonel positively. Mr. Ivins then asked if the colonel said other things about Barnes at Saratoga.

"That quotation is all wrong," said the colonel.

"It is the stenographer's mistake. It quotes me as saying: 'Policies in vogue' by Barnes and Murphy. What ever 'vogue' means I do not know, but I never said it."

Mr. Roosevelt admitted making speeches at Utica on October 10 and Gloversville on October 12, in which he said Barnes and Murphy belong to the same party, their forces united to take the power of self government away from the people with the people as the fulcrum on which the Barnes-Murphy seesaw swings back and forth.

On most occasions when asked if he made certain references to Barnes, the colonel snapped out "yes" or "I certainly did."

Occasionally his answer was: "I said something like that but that is a mis-quotation."

About one speech Mr. Roosevelt said Mr. Ivins was not reading it right.

When Mr. Ivins took his seat with a sigh of relief after saying "That's all," the colonel had been on the stand 33 hours and four minutes.

Immediately Mr. Bowers took up the re-direct examination to offset the admissions the plaintiff drew from the former president. Mr. Bowers took up the matter of campaign contributions.

"You testified, under Mr. Ivins' examination, about the Clapp committee," asked Mr. Bowers.

"I did," said the witness. Bowers then read from the record all the testimony given by the colonel on that point.

"Do you remember saying that?" "I do."

Mr. Bowers then asked Mr. Roosevelt if he ever saw the report of Mr. Cortelyou on the Republican fund in 1904.

Mr. Ivins objected.

"This witness," said Mr. Bowers, has been misled by Mr. Ivins. He trusted to Mr. Ivins' assurances.

"This paper from which Mr. Ivins read, was not a report at all, as the witness thought it was but the finding of the Clapp committee."

"Mr. Roosevelt under examination by Mr. Ivins, frequently said he did not remember about contributions. Mr. Ivins said many times 'If I should tell you that this report shows that thus-and-so gave $50,000 would you agree it to be true?' Mr. Roosevelt said he would. On one occasion the witness asked if Mr. Ivins was reading from the official report. Mr. Ivins said he was."

"My honor has been attacked," said Ivins, "by my old friend, Mr. Bowers."

"I goes beyond friendship," interposed Mr. Bowers.

"I asked this witness," resumed Mr. Ivins, "certain questions about contribution. He constantly put me on the witness stand and cross-examined me. I told him nothing except what he asked me."

"This is not a laughable matter, Mr. Barnes," rasped out Mr. Bowers.

The contention of Bowers was that Mr. Roosevelt, on the stand, said he knew nothing about the campaign contributions in 1904. Mr. Ivins read from the findings of the Clapp committee and asked Mr. Roosevelt if the list gave certain names and amounts, would he assume them to be correct. Mr. Roosevelt said he would. It then developed that Mr. Ivins was not reading from the Cortelyou report but from the Clapp committee's finding.

"I misled nobody," shouted Mr. Ivins.

"I'll not stand here and be accused of it, if this court will permit me. This witness volunteered to me that he got his facts from Mr. Cortelyou. I did not ask him. He volunteered the information. He told me in answer to a question that he knew more about the campaign fund than the committee. He knew more than anybody. Mislead this witness? Absurd."

Mr. Bower contended that the Cortelyou report showed the 1904 fund to be $2,000,000, not $3,000,000 as the Clapp committee report said, and not half as much as the McKinley fund in 1896 or the Republican fund of 1900.

"We are getting rather far afield," interposed the court and both Ivins and Bowers laughed.

Mr. Bowers then took another tack.

"Mr. Roosevelt," he asked, "have you read the testimony of young Mr. Bliss before the Clapp committee?"

ESTHER ROOS WHO WILL CHRISTEN NEW BATTLESHIP ARIZONA.

Prescott, Arizona, April 28.—Governor Hunt has named Esther Roos, 17 years old, of this city, to christen the United States battleship Arizona, which will be launched from the Brooklyn Navy Yard on June 19, next.

"I have."

"Now do you want to correct your testimony?" asked Bowers.

"You may," said the court.

"Now that my memory is refreshed," began the colonel impressively.

"We object," said Ivins.

"Over-ruled," said the court.

"Now that my memory is refreshed," the witness resumed "I want to say Mr. Cortelyou told me—"

Objection.

Justice Andrews:

"He may answer."

"Substantially" again began the colonel "about ten years ago last Fall, Mr. Cortelyou told me that the receipts—"

FRENCH CRUISER SUNK BY TORPEDO

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, April 28.—The French armored cruiser Leon Gambetta has been torpedoed and sunk in the Adriatic Sea. Part of the crew of 725 men was saved, but the loss of life is believed to have been heavy.

The cruiser was torpedoed off Otranto, the important Italian port on the Adriatic.

In announcing that the cruiser had been torpedoed, the ministry of marine stated today that full details had not been received. It is considered certain here, however, that the ship was attacked by a submarine from the Austrian naval base at Pola.

The following statement was issued by the Ministry of Marine today:

"Brief dispatches inform us that the Leon Gambetta was torpedoed on the night of April 26-27 in the Adriatic off Otranto. The details are not yet known, but it is certain that part of the crew was saved."

The Leon Gambetta was a cruiser ship to the Victor Hugo and Jules Ferry and registered 12,352 tons. She was nearly fourteen years old, having been completed at Breslin October 1901. The lost cruiser was 476 feet long, 70 feet wide and carried a crew of 725 men. The Leon Gambetta was protected by Krupp armor and carried the following armaments:

Four 7.6 inch (45 calibre) guns in pairs in turrets fore and aft; 16 6.4 inch (45 calibre) guns, 12 of which were in pairs in turrets and four in casemates; 24 3-pounders; two 1-pounders and two 8-inch submerged torpedo tubes. The cruiser was capable of 28 knots speed and her indicated horsepower was 27,125.

The distance from Pola, the Austrian naval base, to Otranto, which lies on the Strait connecting the Adriatic and Ionian Seas, is 370 miles. The torpedoing of the Leon Gambetta is the first report of submarine activity that far south.

The occupation of Het-Sas and St. Julien by the allies presents the Germans from using important roads west of the canal which they had previously won.

Air fighting is in progress on a big scale above West Flanders. The Germans sent an aerial armada of great size skyward to prevent the aviators of the allies from approaching the German lines to spy out their movements and some of the most spectacular sky-fights of the war have taken place above the artillery and rifle fire of the entrenched armies.

The number of prisoners taken by the Turks has been increased to 1,000. It is stated, and Ottoman troops are advancing on Gaba Tepeh, the point where the British troops have entrenched themselves.

The official statement follows:

"Our aviators report that two battleships of the enemy's fleet have been badly damaged by the fire of the Dardanelles forts. The operations conducted by the allied fleet and army have thus far resulted favorably to us."

"The coast of Gallipoli peninsula has been cleared of the enemy except at Gaba Tepeh, where British troops have maintained their positions under the protection of their ships' fire. West of Sed-El-Bahr we easily drove the enemy out. Turkish troops are now approaching Gaba Tepeh, where the British have entrenched themselves."

The number of prisoners taken by the Turks has been increased to 1,000. We also captured several machine guns."

Definite action on the transfer of the Very Rev. Dr. Joseph F. Rummel from the pastorate of St. Peter's Church in this city to that of the Church of St. Anthony of Padua on One Hundred and Sixty-sixth street New York city, was announced on Tuesday by Cardinal Farley. The Rev. Otto F. Strack comes to St. Peter's Church from St. Anthony's. Father Strack organized the parish about 12 years ago and built a fine church and school combined. The parish also owns considerable real estate adjoining which is very valuable and likely in time a much larger church will be built on this site. The congregation is about twice the size of St. Peter's Church here and Dr. Rummel will have two assistants. About twice the number of services are held in the church during the week.

Rummel's departure will be keenly regretted in Kingston as he is known and loved in all walks of life. His successor, Father Strack, is well known here as he has preached in Kingston on a number of occasions. The vast amount of work done by Dr. Rummel since coming to Kingston, including the building of the new school, will always stand as a monument to his indefatigable efforts for the upbuilding of the church in this vicinity.

Hike for Boy Scouts.

If the weather is pleasant the Boy Scouts will go on hike Saturday, leaving their headquarters at 8 o'clock. All who go will bring lunch and 11 cents in cash. Those who have uniforms should wear them. It is hoped that a goodly number of boys will join in this trip.

In City Court.

In city court this morning Judge W. D. Brinnier, Jr., dismissed the complaint in the action brought by J. E. Vanderveer against John F. Gallagher, an action to recover on a disputed account. Neither party appeared and the inference is that the matter has been settled out of court.

ALLIES CAPTURE GERMAN TRENCHES

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, April 28.—Several German trenches, six quick firing guns and 200 prisoners were captured by the Franco-Belgian forces at Het-Sas in Belgium, on Tuesday, it was officially announced today by the Belgian legation. The offensive movement of the Belgian and French forces between Ypres and Dixmude, along the canal, is growing in violence and the attacks against the new German front are incessant. The Belgian official statement which was issued through the government press bureau, follows:

"The French and Belgians have taken several German trenches at Het-Sas. More than 600 German dead were counted upon the field. Six quick-firing guns and 200 prisoners were taken by the Franco-Belgian forces. The attacks by our troops continue."

(Het-Sas lies on the east bank of the Yser or Ypres canal as it is sometimes called about five and a half miles north of Ypres.)

All the hospitals in Belgium are filled with German soldiers wounded in the latest attempt of the Kaiser's forces to cut their way through the allies' lines to the French coast—an attempt which many British military experts now declare has completely collapsed. There are 7,200 wounded Germans in the military hospitals at Bruges.

Field Marshal Sir John French has brought up reinforcements to the Ypres front and the British and French lines north of the shell-shattered city of Ypres are being stiffened to prevent the Germans from closing in and cutting off the troops holding the place.

Military writers on some of the London newspapers are taking a pessimistic view of the situation at Ypres, expressing the opinion that while the German offensive has been checked, the crisis in the latest drive of the Teutons has not yet been passed.

The occupation of Het-Sas and St. Julien by the allies presents the Germans from using important roads west of the canal which they had previously won.

Air fighting is in progress on a big scale above West Flanders. The Germans sent an aerial armada of great size skyward to prevent the aviators of the allies from approaching the German lines to spy out their movements and some of the most spectacular sky-fights of the war have taken place above the artillery and rifle fire of the entrenched armies.

ONLY 136 SAVED FROM CRUISER

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, April 28.—The commander of the French armored cruiser Leon Gambetta and all his staff perished when the ship was sunk off the entrance to the Otranto canal. The following official statement supplementing the earlier announcement of the cruiser's loss was issued by the ministry of marine this evening:

"The Leon Gambetta was sunk while cruising off the entrance of the Otranto canal. She went down in ten minutes. All the high officers died at their posts. 136 sailors and petty officers were saved by Italian boats."

HERALDED BY SNOW FLOW.

Trolley Road Gave Warning of Change in the Weather.

"Gee, I knew it would be so," remarked the man who had just discarded his winter underwear for his summer apparel, in no genial tone of voice as he kicked off the bed clothes and hopped gingerly out of bed this morning. Tuesday the thermometer was hovering around 90 and he had found it too warm for comfort and had jumped out of his "woolen fleece" and into his "light weights." When he arose this morning, however, he found that the weather man had decided that the weather of Tuesday was too warm for April and had switched on another brand of weather and as a result the thermometer was hovering around 50.

Yes, it was some change in the weather, and the kitchen stove that had been allowed to go out the past few days had to have a fire started in this morning before the man "who knew it would be so" could leave for his work. That is one of the reasons why some men were late to work this morning.

The sudden change in the weather was anticipated by the Kingston Consolidated Railroad for while the thermometer was around the 90 mark they ran the snow plow up and down the trolley tracks Tuesday afternoon and pedestrians rubbing their eyes looked again and said, "Gee, it must be some mistake," but the weather today proved that the trolley people seemed to know pretty near what was coming, or it was a "damn good guess."

In Recorder's Court.

Joseph Steinhilber was arraigned in recorder's court this morning on the charge of being drunk and using bad language on Suyessant street. He was arrested by Policeman James J. Murphy. In the court he was loath to plead guilty to the charge and the case was adjourned until Thursday morning.

Sergeant Murray arrested William Komasa on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. He was given a severe reprimand by Recorder Lang and discharged.

Joseph Lojeskie was arrested for petit larceny. A junk dealer claimed that the defendant had stolen a quantity of rubber from him. A plea of not guilty was entered and the case adjourned until Thursday. Lojeskie was arrested by Policeman Hess.

New Elevator at Van Wagenen's.

The L. B. Van Wagenen Company has long been known as one of the most modern department stores along the river and in pursuance of its policy of being strictly up to the minute it is having installed an electrically run passenger elevator of the most modern type covering the three floors and basement of the big store.

The elevator shaft is being built of brick by Charles J. Michael & Company from plans drawn by Architect G. W. Betz. When the work is completed and the elevator installed it will be found a great convenience to the shoppers as it will be possible to reach all departments of the store without using the stairways.

Held for Assault.

On Tuesday evening Elbert Winchell met a young girl on Grand street and asked to be directed to Clifton avenue. The girl started to give him the right route and when in a dark spot he attempted to assault her. The screams of the girl, who is only fifteen years old, attracted some of the neighbors who summoned Policeman Ryan and Winchell was placed under arrest. This morning there was no appearance on the part of the complainants but the defendant was held until Thursday morning on a serious charge.

Full Rehearsal Tonight.

Tonight there will be a full rehearsal of the Spring Musical Festival Chorus at the new high school building, at 7:45 o'clock. All persons who have enrolled or are contemplating singing in the chorus for the oratorio of "The Creation," are especially requested to attend this evening's rehearsal. The chorus will tonight, vote for the conductor for this year's festival.

New Grocery Store.

W. J. Auchmoody has opened a grocery, flour and feed store in a new building, No. 413 old Merchants store building, the corner of Washington avenue, the corner of Hurley avenue.

Parent-Teachers' Meeting.

A Parent-Teachers' Meeting will be held in School No. 2 on Tuesday, May 4, at 3:30 p. m.

Oiling Fair Street.

The street force is engaged in oiling a portion of Fair street and is also at work on St. James street. The oiling of Washington avenue is also under way.

are very enthusiastic these days, picking the sweet spring flowers in the meadow near their home.

Roswell Osterhout is doing a rushing business these days. Jacob Rider and Floyd Mackey are ably assisting him in planting his spring crops.

Charles B. Osterhout called at

Daniel B. Schoonmaker's at Accord on Monday afternoon.
Mr. and Mrs. William Wood were out calling on Saturday evening.

LEIBHARDT.

Leibhardt, April 28.—Charles
Brown and son, Stanley, of Rifton, are visiting relatives and friends in this place.

O. Teas and wife of Brown's Station were entertained at the home of Peter Barnhardt and family on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Lawrence were in Kingston Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. DeVoe of Accord were callers at the home of Mrs. Peter Hornbeck, Mrs. Margaret
Lawrence and Mrs. Agnes Brown on Sunday afternoon.

Harry F. Brown enjoyed a visit with his friend, Eustas Gray, last week, at Palentown and both boys went on a trout fishing trip in the mountain streams.

Fish peddlers are quite numerous in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Shurter and Miss Sylvia Shurter called at the Hill Side Farm House Sunday.

Myron Quick and friend of Walden made their motorcycle trip to this place and were guests of Mr. Quick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Quick, last Sunday.

Miss Emily Quick was entertained at the home of her friend, Miss Marian Brown, Sunday.

Fire has been raging in the Snake Hill woods for a couple of days the first of the week. About 100 men and boys were fighting the fire on Sunday afternoon and the building of Mr. Gulickson was endangered.

Mrs. Juda Quick has recently had her house repainted, which makes a nice improvement to her home.

The Hornbeck boys were home from Lake Mohonk Saturday and Sunday.

Remember the Arbor Day exercises on Friday, May 7. Everyone invited to attend.

Services will be held in the M. E.
Church Friday evening, May 7, by Rev. Mr. Voight of Accord.

Mrs. J. Josephine and Little daughter, Josephine, Mrs. Florence Soleberg of New York are spending a week at the home of Mrs. Agnes Brown; also visiting other relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Brown and sons, Rex and William, and Miss Marian Brown motored to Ellenville
Saturday.

Mrs. Agnes Brown and Mrs. D. J.
Brown were callers at the home of Mrs. Margaret Lawrence and Mrs. L.
E. Lawrence Friday afternoon.

ACCORD.

Accord, April 28.—David Lefever of Rifton has moved into Friend
Wilkinson's house at Millbrook.

Marshall McCabe has returned to New York city.

The remains of Miss Sarah J.
Schoonmaker were interred in the family plot Friday afternoon.

W. H. Rose contemplates building a new house in the near future.
A parcel post social will be held in the lecture room of the Reformed Church on Thursday evening, April 29.

Mrs. Henry Frost, who has been quite ill, is improving.

Shad peddlers are in town.
L. B. Slater and B. Knicker are gaining in health.

Repairs have been made to the cistern in the Reformed Church parsonage.

One hundred and four cases of eggs were shipped from this station
Monday on the 2:34 train.

Leonard Markle spent Sunday and Monday in Port Ewen and Kingston.
The frame for B. Grebin's new store, near R. Krom's, has been erected.

ATONEMENT.

"I hate the smell of mothballs and there's the woman next door hanging up the clothes she has had put away with them." "Why object to that?
She's doing you a neighborly kindness in airing your grievances."

DOCTORS WERE FAKERS.

Graduation Customs in Vogue in the Seventeenth Century.

The conferring of the degree of doctor of medicine was a much more imposing ceremony 300 years ago than it is today. The graduation of a medical student was generally celebrated with much ceremony, and for several days there were music and feasts. The historic features of the medical examination and graduation of this period have been immortalized in Moliere's "Le medecin malade." This charming and instructive comedy was produced in 1665 for the special enjoyment of the king and court. From the raising of the curtain till it falls the piece is the most scathing satire on medical art and science. No detail concerning professors, practice, teaching and instructions is omitted that could serve as a point for railery and ridicule. Incredible as it may appear, the majority of students attained the degree of bachelor, and conversed amiably of the nature and cure of disease before having seen a case. The great object of medical education at that day was to know and discuss all that the ancients had said about health and disease. After years of devotion to this course of study the student was eligible for the baccalaureat, which was followed by intervals with further tests, and then came the examination for the "vespasse," admission to the "vespasse," followed with "capping." The scene takes place in the amphitheater of the old medical school of Paris or Montpellier, says Mortimer Frank, in an article on medical instruction in the seventeenth century in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association. We see a crowd of old French medical celebrities, including doctors, surgeons and apothecaries in full professional glory with their four-cornered caps, and red robes trimmed with ermine. Beneath them sit a number of students, wearing the black robe of a bachelor. The dean presides and opens the ceremonies with a long discourse on the glories of the institution. The object of the assembly is then disclosed, this being the examination of a candidate, to determine if he can give sufficient proof of the necessary qualifications for becoming a licentiate for graduation. The candidate having furnished brilliant proof of his capacity sits on his knee and receives the apostolic benediction. After an interval of a few weeks or more the candidate is admitted to the "vespasse," which consisted of a pompous eulogy on the dignity and importance of the medical profession. On the final day he proceeds to take the oath, swear faithfully to observe the statutes, reverence the opinions of his seniors and never make use of remedies except those sanctioned by them. The candidate solemnly repeats the immortal single word "Juro!" the dean thrusts the square bonnet on his head, accompanying the act with a slight tap; and the worthy licentiate is henceforth privileged to practice. The bachelor, having undergone the ceremonial ordeal with success, delivers a flowery address and thanks his masters for the honor conferred. This is followed by a banquet with its numerous dinners and banquets of old-time dimensions, which forms the substance of Moliere's sparkling satire, and a true picture of the seventeenth century graduation ceremonies.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The telephone call of Mrs. C. N. Reed, society news reporter for The Freeman, has been changed to 1012-W.

Mr. and Mrs. Zadoc P. Boice of Albany avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Delta Boice, of this city, to Jansen Anderson McIntee of this city.

The congregation of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Yorkville tendered a reception to the Rev. and Mrs. Charles Howland Cookman last week. On Sunday there was a large Sunday school rally at the church, the members of the school worshipping with the congregation in a body. Among the many interesting features of the church work is a Chinese Sunday school, whose members meet for service each Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kesler entertained at their home, No. 12 South Pine street, and a most enjoyable evening was spent by those present. At the close of the play the host and hostess presented Mrs. Edgar T. Shults with a handsome Boston bull dog. A tag attached to the dog's collar bore the inscription: "Although I am little I will do all that I can to protect Mrs. Shults from the bad boogy man who tries to scare her when the sheriff's away, but first I must ask 'Bill' if he'll let me stay." The last line of the "poem" makes an interesting story. It seems that Mrs. Shults has been waiting a dog for a few days. Detective "Bill" Cohen found a handsome little bull dog roaming the streets without an owner and he left the animal at the sheriff's residence, where the dog remained just long enough for Mrs. Shults to become attached to him when Mr. Cohen learned that the dog's owner was ex-Mayor William D. Brinnier and returned the dog to him. The gift Tuesday evening came as a complete surprise to Mrs. Shults.

Burroughs-Fuller.

Charles A. Burroughs of 58 Brewster street and Miss Eva Mae Fuller of 18 Van Buren street were married Tuesday afternoon at the parsonage of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Yorkville by the pastor, the Rev. Charles Howland Cookman. The ceremony was performed with the use of a ring. Mr. and Mrs. Burroughs left immediately for New York city and on their return to Kingston will make their home at 58 Downs street. Mr. Burroughs is a member of St. James' Methodist Episcopal Church and Mrs. Burroughs is a member of the Clinton Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church and a teacher in the Sunday school.

Holmes-Reinhardt.

St. Mary's Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding this afternoon at 4 o'clock when Miss Sara Elizabeth Holmes of West Chestnut street became the bride of Frederick Reinhardt. The Rev. John J. Hickey performed the ceremony. The bride was charmingly attired in white tulle, trimmed with real Irish lace and wore a veil caught with lilies of the valley. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and carnations. Miss Kathryn Holmes, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and was prettily attired in pink tulle and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Groomsmen were Mr. and Mrs. G. Reinhardt, brother of the groom, acted as best man. The bride and groom were the recipients of many costly presents, including checks, cut glass, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Reinhardt left on the 5:40 train for Niagara Falls and other places of interest. On their return they will reside on West Chestnut street, where a beautiful furnished home awaits them. The bride and groom have a host of friends who extend their heartiest congratulations.

Effects of the Harrison Law.

When the Harrison law became effective, March 1, it was widely predicted that the result would be a besieging of hospitals by crazed drug addicts, a crime wave of national scope and a trail of suicides and death across the country. A month has passed and while the results have not been as terrible as the early hysteria painted them, have not even approximated the glaring headline predictions of the yellow press, they have nevertheless been apparent to physicians and to others who come in daily contact with drug traffic. From two cities come reports which are evidence of this fact. In the Philadelphia General Hospital—and this is true of practically every hospital in the country in which drug addicts are treated—the number of admissions has greatly increased. Without doubt the law has forced numerous habits, who otherwise might have been satisfied to continue to apply to physicians and institutions for treatment. Further, there is no doubt that the large majority of these unfortunates will be freed of their habit. The increased admissions to these hospitals do not represent an increase in drug addiction; they are simply an objective manifestation of the operation of the Harrison law. The report from the Cook County coroner's office pictures the opposite side of the picture. It points to the suicide who anticipates his suffering as his supply of drugs ceases; it indicates the ever-hopeful victims who seek succor of pain in deadly nostrums, and it hints at the death from secondary causes in weakened and collapsed bodies. It should again be emphasized, says The Journal of the American Medical Association, that these reports are not evidence of the existence of enormous numbers of drug habits; rather they represent the toll of a new law and the throwing of light on a hidden evil.

Depends on the Man.

Any woman can have any man she likes if she pursues him vigorously enough or eludes him—either does. There are two ways for a woman to get what she wants. Either chase it for all she worth, or run from it in the same manner. It depends on the man—"Time O' Day," by Doris Egerton Jones.

MC CLEARY NOT EVEN IN TROUBLE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Galveston, Tex., April 28.—Phil E. McCleary, the American newspaper man who was reported imprisoned and sentenced to be shot by Carranza at Vera Cruz, arrived in Galveston today on the steamship City of Tampico from Vera Cruz. McCleary declares that he was never in any trouble at Vera Cruz. He says he is employed by the official bureau of the Carranzistas and is en route to Chicago for that bureau.

Trust him little who praises all, him who with everyone all and before him.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to express my heartfelt thanks and deep appreciation to the many kindnesses and sympathy of friends and neighbors during the illness and after the death of my beloved wife; and also for the many beautiful floral offerings.

WESLEY SMITH.

MYSTIC NUMBERS.

Romance That is Woven Around the Seven, Three and Nine.

There are seven days in the week because of the oriental tradition that the world was created in seven days. The Romans had no week, but reckoned by months, counting forward and backward from the ides and nones, until the fourth century, when they adopted the Jewish-Christian week.

Because of its relation to the creation the number seven has always been invested with an occult and mystic significance. There were seven wise men in antiquity and seven wonders of the world. The seventh son of a seventh son, or seventh daughter of a seventh daughter was supposed to possess powers of prophecy or divination. For seven days seven priests with seven trumpets invested Jericho, and on the seventh day they encompassed it seven times. The ancients knew of seven planets and seven metals. There were seven heavens and seven hierarchies of angels.

Seven had a mystic significance among peoples who had no tradition of a seven day creation, and this was due to its being indivisible by any number but itself and to its being a combination of 3 called by Pythagoras the perfect number, representing beginning, middle and end, and 4, the square number.

The Pythagorean idea about 3 received confirmation when the doctrine of trinity in unity was promulgated by the early Christians. For 3 is itself at once trinity and unity.

The number 9 was endowed with mysterious properties because it is the product of three times three—perfection multiplied by perfection. To see nine magpies was remarkably lucky. Nine grains of wheat laid on a four leafed clover enabled one to see the fairies. New York World.

A CHANGELESS METAL.

Science Wants It For Standard Measures, But Cannot Find It.

The use of melted quartz for the manufacture of standard measures of length has been a great disappointment, since even this material is subject to very marked fluctuations in length.

The search for a suitable material is, however, being continued, because platinum-iridium, which has been used up to the present, is out of the question for practical purposes on account of its great cost, says the Scientific American.

Dr. Guillaume discovered the alloy, which has become known under the name of "invar," an abbreviation for "invariable."

The nickel-steel alloy would make an ideal material for standards of length on account of its great resistance to changes in temperature, but unfortunately it is not proof against chemical action. For this reason it is suitable only for standards of the second grade, in which accuracy within a millionth part is sufficient.

The ideal material, possessing the advantages of platinum-iridium but less expensive than the latter, is therefore still to be found. Similarly good materials for standard weights have been sought extensively and various non-magnetic nickel alloys have been tested.

A review of the progress in the use of the metric system shows that during recent years Denmark, Spain, Belgium Congo and some of the Central American states have adopted this decimal system.

The most important success still to be gained by the metric system, the conquest of England and of the United States, seems still, however, far removed.

The First Aeroplane.

The earliest effort to construct a machine which, according to modern ideas, is entitled to be called an aeroplane was undoubtedly that of William Henson in 1842. Henson, who was a practicing engineer, with offices in New York city, Bishopsgate, London, devised a machine which resembled very closely the type which has since been termed the monoplane—that is, having its supporting planes practically forming a single deck, as distinguished from the box form of the biplane and multiplane devices of later inventors.

HER OWN AFFAIR

And, Though There Was a Little Delay, It Was a Success.

By CHARLOTTE TELLER.

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

Mrs. Halbert's first marriage had begun with an elopement and had ended badly. When she announced that she was going to marry again there was general consternation in her family. They knew her.

She was pink and white and stubborn, and she had never been known to hesitate. Once she had wavered, but that was when she was very young. After she made up her mind, however, she was always willing to talk things over.

They had been discussing the question of her marriage for an hour and a half when her mother inquired who he was.

"He is the one man in the world I care for," said Mrs. Halbert. But that threw little light on the subject, since she and her mother never knew the same people.

"What is his name?" asked her father.

"Redding Garwood," said Mrs. Halbert with pride.

"I have never heard of him," said Mrs. Gilroy.

"Of course not," said Mrs. Halbert. "He is a very busy man."

"Busy?" said Mr. Gilroy. "Busy—at what?"

"He is a social worker," replied Mrs. Halbert.

"A—what?" boomed her father.

"He is working to better conditions." "And may I ask why?" queried Mrs. Gilroy.

"What conditions?" stormed her father.

"Let's not get excited," said Mrs. Halbert. "To do what he is doing takes a great deal of time and money."

"Whose?" asked Mr. Gilroy.

"Has he any?" demanded Mrs. Gilroy.

"Of course not," said Mrs. Halbert. "He is a very interesting man."

"Can any one tell me," asked Mrs. Gilroy, "how I have been given a child so totally unlike myself—so impractical, so improvident and—unsuspecting?"

Mrs. Halbert always knew the beginning of the end. It was upon them at this juncture.

She trailed her pink negligee out of the room and up the broad staircase, which was photographed once a year by either an artist and crafts or an architectural magazine—usually for a frontispiece on "millionaires' homes."

When she reached her room she took off the negligee and donned the simplest of her tailor suits. It was the simplicity of it that made it so expensive.

She left her rings and her jeweled hand bag with Zenaida, her maid, and took a car—not her car, but a street car at the corner—and went over into a part of town quite unknown to her family, which had become her region of romance.

When she entered an old house, once inhabited by the rich, she was in a long, dim drawing room. There were filling cases along one side of the room, where Redding Garwood put all the information he could get about the poor.

He was very much in earnest and rather shy and—many people thought—quite unsuited to settlement work. He was not at all pink and white, but rather dark, with a gray tinge at the edge of his hair, and his clothes were far from new, and he wore a very ordinary, everyday sort of necktie, which counted against him with the girls' clubs.

He just nodded in a kindly, social worker sort of way when Mrs. Halbert flung her arms about his neck as he sat bending over some statistics about real estate values and births per acre in New York city.

"It is all arranged, my dear," she said.

"Ah!" He took a deep breath of contentment. "Then we can have fourteen children, although some of them will have to be in perambulators."

"You are too absentminded, my dear Redding," said Mrs. Halbert. "I am not speaking of the parade."

And then she told him that she had announced their approaching marriage to her family.

"Oh, I see!" he said. "I'm glad it's all right." And he picked up the list of new contributors to the uplift work she put in front of him. "What an influence for good you are!" he added.

"I have decided not to elope this time," she said, "although it does appear to me as a precedent. It would be an easy way out of the difficulty, too; you must admit that, my dear."

"What difficulty?" asked Garwood.

"The family," said Mrs. Halbert. Garwood got to his feet.

Although as a social worker he sometimes sat all day long humped over in his chair while he gave advice to the neighborhood or studied statistics, when he did rise to his feet he was tall and broad and energetic.

Mrs. Halbert jumped and tried to push him back into his chair.

"You do startle me so when you get up like that," she said.

But he kept his feet.

"You mean that you are marrying me against your family's wishes?" he asked.

"Why, of course," she replied.

"Never!" said Garwood, and his eye sought the list of new patronesses. She took the list out of his hand.

"You needn't give it another thought. We shall have a home wedding and all the usual fuss, and the family will all be there, and it will do a great deal for your work. You needn't give it a thought," and she put the list of ladies in the leather hand bag she was carrying. "You haven't got the time to look after so unimportant a matter. I am going to take the burden of all such things off your shoulders."

"All what things?" asked Garwood.

"Why, our wedding—I mean—you look after the parades and the playgrounds, and I will arrange this. I consider it my affair." And, standing on her tiptoes, she kissed him.

After breakfast the day after the invitations had all been mailed Mrs. Halbert penetrated her mother's apartments and broke the news. There was a fearful scene—not unexpected—and bitter things were said of the absent Garwood. He was accused of money hunting, of social ambitions, of hypnotic power, of all sorts of blackguardism.

"He has not even called at the house."

"You have never invited him," said Mrs. Halbert. "You have been exceedingly rude, but he will forgive you. The invitations are out; there will be no bridal bouquet and just the simplest breakfast."

For the three days preceding the day set for the wedding Mrs. Gilroy stayed in her room with an attack of nerves. But when the hour arrived she dressed and came downstairs and pressed the hand of the bishop. It was a silent appeal for sympathy, and in a plaintive voice she begged her husband not to make a scene.

It is due him to say that he behaved with extraordinary self control. He had worked off some of his emotion by abusing his valet as he donned his wedding garments.

The rooms were lavishly decorated. Zenaida had insisted upon it.

"Madam may never be married again," she had said.

Mrs. Halbert was quite ready. Her mother's eye rested upon her in disapproval.

"You might at least, my dear, show some respect for us in details, even if you are quite willing to wreck our lives—that gown is a year old, and every one has seen you wear it."

"He hasn't," said Mrs. Halbert.

"And where is he, my dear Mrs. Halbert?" asked the bishop in an old friend-of-the-family voice.

"He ought to be here now," she replied. "It is—high noon!" She spoke ecstatically.

"It is exactly half past 12," boomed her father, "a fine hour for weddings—spoils the whole day."

The guests arrived. There were a great many of them, and they were quite interested. It was the first time that any of their set had ever married a social worker. They knew it would be exciting. They were quite sure that he was marrying her for her money, although, of course, she had charm, and she was delightfully original. This marriage proved it.

After awhile the guests had said all that they could think of to say at a noon wedding, and they began to be impatient and look toward the double doors that showed so well the famous staircase.

Upstairs Zenaida was flattening her nose against a window which commanded the avenue, but she could get no glimpse of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Halbert walked the floor—then she telephoned the settlement. He was not there.

That was hopeful, though negative, for it implied he was on his way. Perhaps the street cars were blocked. She gave him time enough after that to reach the house, even should he have to walk.

Her father fumed and rushed in and out of her room. Her mother's cheeks grew red under her rouge. The guests grew quite thoughtful and found the perfume of the banked flowers far too heavy.

"After all I have done to make it easy for him," said Mrs. Halbert to Zenaida. "I have not bothered him with a single detail. I have shouldered the whole social burden, but you see"—she paced up and down the room—"I ought to have eloped. I ought not to have defied destiny."

Her mother appeared in the door.

"This is perfectly absurd," she said. "What shall we do?"

Mrs. Halbert's pride kept her from bursting into tears. "Do?" she echoed.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 28, 1915.

One of the propositions before the Constitutional Convention is a provision that the Legislature and the Governor may require opinions from Judges of the Court of Appeals upon important questions of law and "upon solemn occasions." At present the practice is to ask the Attorney General for an opinion, which is usually found to be in favor of the political party which elected him, if politics is involved. Anyway, it does not amount to much. It is a deplorable waste of time to bring matters to the attention of the highest court by the process familiar to us. There ought to be a short cut when the issue is important. What is true of State issues is true of National ones. It would have been a tremendous advantage to business men if the anti-trust law could have been interpreted soon after its enactment instead of waiting until it had been ignorantly violated for a couple of decades. Labor-saving devices are the fashion everywhere except in the courts, and they will eventually be introduced there.

The fact set forth by Senator Brown that taxes are bound to increase steadily in this State in spite of the most rigid economy is worth a good deal of thought. What is true of the State is true of the Nation itself and of every sub-division thereof. The reason is that the Government is constantly assuming duties which used to be performed by citizens for themselves. Philanthropists and reformers of all sorts are persistent in promoting this process. They have been most successful in Massachusetts, whose laws are constantly being cited as models. The result is that the per capita State debt of Massachusetts is $24, while that of New York is $9, and the average of all the States $4. Progress costs money, but not so much as appears at first sight. As an illustration, take our own city's latest assumption of work formerly done privately, viz., the oiling of the streets. This increases the tax budget, but it doubtless saves money to the people. This is typical of the whole process of enlarging governmental activities. High taxes do not necessarily mean higher cost of living.

Persons actively engaged in a fight or quarrel are notoriously poor judges of the neutrality of bystanders, and that is the explanation of the fact that Dr. Dornburg and Editor Ridder have come out with the assertion that when the Allies used bombs filled with asphyxiating gases a few months ago the American press applauded the device, while now, when the Germans are doing the same thing, the same press "whines about the barbarian methods of warfare of the wicked Germans." The answer to this is that it is untrue. Neither critic backs up his assertion with quotations. So far as we have seen, the press has treated this practice merely as a matter of great interest. For our own part, we fail to see that it is any more cruel to asphyxiate an enemy than to shoot him. So far from being barbarous, asphyxiation seems to us to be the more merciful method. It is surely less painful than a wound which causes the victim to writhe for hours in agony. Moreover, it appears that the majority of soldiers who are stupefied by the gases recover. It ought to be possible under favorable conditions to make a regiment unconscious long enough to capture it without destroying a single life. Instead of branding asphyxiation as savage, some future international congress may declare it to be the only honorable method of fighting.

Few people have the patience to wade through the mass of testimony in the Barnes-Roosevelt case. It is unseemly to express any judgment upon the case as a whole while it is pending, but there can be no harm in quoting what a witness says of himself under oath. During Colonel Roosevelt's cross-examination regarding his relations with "Boss" Platt, he was asked: "When things were coming your way it was all right, then?" To which he replied: "When Platt was doing things to aid me it was all right. I never criticized Mr. Platt when he aided me." All of the Colonel's testimony was in harmony with this. He never fought any "boss" who helped forward his personal ambitions. The Colonel is constitutionally unable to see anything wrong about this. Believing himself to be infallible and the fountain of all sound political policies, he feels that the only political sin is opposition to his wishes. We suspect that this is more or less true of all "bosses." They all think they are right and regard all opposition as evil. Even Tweed did not consider that he was a rascal. Pickpockets justify themselves on the ground that property is unequally distributed. Self-admiration is a universal trait. The only difference between the Colonel and other folks is that he is less modest in setting forth his goodness. However this trial results, its great lesson will be that people who live in glass houses should throw no stones.

"LIGHT FROM DARKNESS."

(By Our Woman Editor.)

Years ago a poor peasant child was taken to the Larnay asylum near Poitiers, France. She was deaf, dumb and blind; an outcast, more nearly resembling a wild beast than a human being, the likeness to a normal child being only in bodily contour.

This child, Marie Huertin, from the gloom of perpetual night and from isolation from human companionship, comprehension and love has been brought into communication with the world, and has sounded some of the depths of happiness that are reached by those who live under normal conditions.

The story of the mighty accomplishments of Helen Keller are known to all; and occasionally we read of others, deaf to every sound, blind and without speech, yet trained to take their part in school work and later on in the more exacting work of life.

In Kentucky, Aileen Kerr, with all those unnatural deprivations, was by special enactment, made a ward of the state, and step by step emerged from the darkness that enveloped her until she is now not far behind the average girl of her age. A special teacher was provided, and with the commonwealth of Kentucky to care for her interests she will be less cut off from life and its sunshine than it might seem.

But added to all their deprivations, Marie Huertin suffered a still heavier stroke of misfortune, and when Sister Sainte Marguerite, of the Larnay asylum, took the little outcast in charge there seemed to be nothing on which to base the hope of release for the imprisoned mind. It is difficult to comprehend the gradual transformation of that unhappy, struggling child, who had to be restrained by physical force, into an intellectual woman of 27 years who can talk pleasantly with those around her and can gather much of the joys of life which once gave promise to remain a sealed book forever.

Surrounded by 150 deaf mutes and eight more to whom blindness was added, unhappy little Marie was put under the special care of the nun who, by some gentle process we cannot fathom, first opened the door that let in the light of love and understanding and then gradually extended the light of knowledge until she began to grow more like a human being.

Can you read between the lines and conjecture, something of the patience, the touching devotion, that led to the almost superhuman effort? Marie Huertin has fully awakened from the awful darkness and can now read, write, use a typewriter, understands the metric system, all geography and particularly that of her own country. In history she has been well trained; in fact, she is out in the light of day; if not the full light that comes to us with normal faculties, at least the best light that can penetrate to one to whom such a state is a reality.

The first awakening and the wearisome process of humanizing the little unfortunate are the most impressive features of the transformation. One thinks of the finished creation with wonderment, but of the nun whose sympathetic work, almost night and day, accomplished the mighty change, words cannot speak with sufficient force to express her self-sacrifice and loving service.

Sister Sainte Marguerite died a few years ago, but not before she had witnessed the growth of her work, had seen the hopeless little Marie of years ago developed into a bright, active woman whose breadth of knowledge amazed all who came in contact with her.

Try as we may, we must always remain on the outskirts of appreciation of the noble work which animated her inconspicuous life.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Why do you compare my marksmanship with lightning?" asked the recruit. "Because," replied the instructor, "it never hits twice in the same place."—Washington Star.

"Why did you say 'the late Mr. Bims'? Bims isn't dead." "I know he isn't," "Then why did you speak of him as your late friend?" "Because he's never on time."—Baltimore American.

"Then you've given up the idea of taking singing lessons." "Yes, I find it would take me three years to learn to sing as well as I thought I sang already."—Boston Transcript.

Madge: "So you feel better since you gave up dancing and devoted yourself to Red Cross work?" Marjorie: "Indeed I do, dear. I've had my name in the papers nine times."—Puck.

"Do you keep any servants?" "No, of course, not." "But I thought I saw one in your kitchen?" "Oh, we have servants on the premises a day or two at a time; but we don't keep them."—Houston Post.

"I have an idea for a novel," said Mr. Penwizzle. "What is it?" "A very large volume thickly upholstered. When you get sleepy after reading a few pages you can use it for a sofa pillow."—Washington Star.

"Mrs. Nurich, I understand your husband is one of the stewards of the racing association." "Look here, young man, my husband gave up cocking years ago and I'd rather you wouldn't refer to it."—Buffalo Express.

Knows It, Too.

Lord Aberdeen once told a story about himself. He was speaking at a charity dinner in Liverpool, and he took the opportunity of warning his hearers against trusting to appearances. "I arrived at a railway station lately," he said, "where I was expecting a telegram to await me. So I went up to the nearest porter and asked him would he mind inquiring at the stationmaster's office whether there was a telegram for me. 'There's none for you, sir,' at once replied the porter. I've just come out of the office, and there's only one telegram there, and that's for Lord Aberdeen?' Just then an official who knew me approached, and I explained the position to him, remarking jocularly that the porter certainly did not think I looked the part. By way of consoling me he promptly replied: 'Never mind, my Lord, if you don't look it, you feel it.'—London Chronicle.

Revenge.

Will Irwin, the novelist, sailing for a second war visit to Belgium, said to a reporter: "The Belgians accept their condition philosophically but sometimes they show how they really feel. Here is an instance:

"A German officer asked the conductor of a street car in Brussels if it would take him to the army headquarters. The conductor hardly understood German at all, and, finally, in his exasperation at not being comprehended, the officer took the man by the back of the neck and shook him violently.

"But at this point a Brussels woman interrupted.

"Take care No. 37, sir," she said to the officer. "That is the car you need."

"The officer thanked her and jumped off. After he had gone, the lady smiled and said to the assembled passengers:

"Car No. 37 won't take him to the army headquarters. It will take him to the hospital."

"I think that is the most suitable place for him."—Washington Post.

The Awful Question.

"Those multi-millionaires who appeared before the Industrial Relations Commission last month were a remarkably liberal group of men," said Upton Sinclair, at a vegetarian banquet in Baltimore. "One multi-millionaire said that no doubt his views in favor of labor were so liberal as to be socialistic, but he couldn't help that. Another said he kept so straight, in his good relations with labor, that he was in constant danger of falling over backward."

Mr. Sinclair smiled, helped himself to a peanut chop and a second cup of oat coffee, and resumed:

"But a question, an innocent question, the question, namely, 'How about that strike of yours in 1909?' brought most of these men up standing.

"It reminds me, that innocent question and its earth-shattering results, of the little boy who, in the drawing room after the Sunday luncheon, sat for lack of a chair, on the knees of his sister, and asked for there were perhaps a dozen people in the drawing room, what with family and guests.

"All of a sudden, in the midst of a deep silence, the little boy turned and looked in the face of his sister's young man and piped in a shrill treble:

"Say, Mr. Brown, am I as heavy as Mabel?"—New York Times.

DR. SWINBURNE, OF ALBANY.

Has been a successful practicing physician for over twenty years. He has for many years devoted his entire time to the study and cure of chronic diseases—just such cases that resist the skill of the ordinary physician and it is by Dr. Swinburne's original improved methods that many patients whose cases were pronounced incurable by other physicians were restored to health. He is opposed to the wild craze for surgery and in many cases his treatment cured without the aid of surgery when an operation was said to be the only means of a cure. He condemns the prevalent practice of giving opiates and other powerful drugs. The habit of using powerful drugs and patent medicines is a very dangerous one. Such drugs produce only temporary relief and the quieting and stupefying effects of the drugs allow a disease to continue to develop before a patient fully realizes the serious condition. Dr. Swinburne's method is to treat the foundation of the trouble so that the result will be a perfect and permanent cure.

Many wonderful cures have been produced in cases where other eminent doctors had failed and anyone suffering from chronic disease should consult Dr. Swinburne without delay. Cases most successfully treated are Stomach Trouble, Nerve and Blood Disorders, Neurasthenia or other Nerve Troubles, Eczema and Blood Diseases, Rheumatism, Special Weakness, Debility, Malnutrition and Private Diseases of Men and Women.

GOLD CROWNS

If you have decayed teeth that will not permit of substantial fillings, don't get discouraged, as our gold and porcelain crowns will restore the teeth to their former usefulness.

We reinforce front teeth with porcelain crowns, which are so natural that they cannot possibly be told from the adjacent teeth.

We always carry thousands of artificial teeth in stock and can match any shape and shade which the case demands. It is important that a dentist carries a large stock of teeth as the correct selection is positively necessary for perfect work.

Our gold crowns for back teeth are 29 gauge thick and 22 karat fine. This insures long service.

Open evenings to 9. Sunday 9 to 1.

Eddy Chests and Refrigerators are constructed on scientific principles, and the material used is the most practical for such purposes.

For this reason, all cases are of WHITE PINE, as it is the best non-conductor of heat, and less liable to swell and warp than hard woods.

All linings are of heavy zinc, as this is the most permanent. Every seam can be soldered, so as to make it absolutely air-tight. Odors and germs cannot penetrate back of it.

The insulation is of our own invention, and, in connection with the dead air space used, the best results are obtained.

The shelves are all SLATE STONE. They are sanitary, smooth, easy to clean, and retain the cold. Furthermore, they will not rust or rot.

The upright and chest styles have double covers a very great help in keeping the ice. That means money saved.

The perfect circulation of cold, dry air utilizes every ounce of ice to the best advantage.

The ice rack, pipe and trap are all removable and simple. No fussy parts to get out of order.

Bear in mind that a refrigerator is intended for an article of use, not an ornament. The EDDY is of the QUALITY line, honest way through.

Sixty-eight years of continuous business stands back of every Eddy. Is not this experience worth something to you when buying a refrigerator?

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING.

On Legislative Bill Amending Charter of the City of Kingston.

To Whom It May Concern: Greetings: I, Palmer Canfield, Jr., Mayor of the City of Kingston, N. Y., hereby give NOTICE that a PUBLIC HEARING concerning the Bill passed by the legislature of the State of New York, being Senate Bill Printed No. 1421, Int. No. 1184, entitled, "AN ACT to amend chapter seven hundred and forty-seven of the laws of this State, and to consolidate the several acts in relation to the City of Kingston, to revise the charter of said city and to establish a city court therein and define its jurisdiction and powers, generally," will be held and afforded before the Mayor and the Common Council of the City of Kingston, N. Y., at the City Hall in said city, on the 30th day of April, 1915, at 7 o'clock p. m., of that day, and all persons may then and there be heard concerning the same.

The bill amends the city charter generally in that it changes the fiscal year from January first to December thirty-first, inclusive, instead of being from December first to November thirtieth inclusive, as at the present time; and in that it provides for the payment of school taxes in August of each year instead of at the close of the year; and in that it provides for the payment of city taxes other than the school taxes, to be paid by the mayor and also the mayor, which board will have jurisdiction over the streets, sewers, and public lighting, etc., of the city, and in that it consolidates the present city court and the present recorder's court, and in that it provides for the appointment of a clerk of the court, and provides for the election of the city judge for a term of four years, and the appointment by the city judge of a clerk who shall be a stenographer, and a person to act as a stenographer, and who presides at the meetings of the common council and who exercises the duties of an alderman excepted, he being elected only in case of a tie vote, and in that it changes the name of the Aims Board to the Board of the City of Kingston, and in that it changes the name of the City Home to the City Home, and in that it changes and amends other provisions and sections of the present city charter.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the City of Kingston, N. Y., to be hereunto affixed, this 26th day of April, 1915. (City Seal)
PALMER CANFIELD, JR.,
Mayor of the City of Kingston, N. Y.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.—In pursuance of an order of Hon. Walter N. ## ONE PLACE THAT NEEDS CLEANING

New York Man Makes a Suggestion and Offers a Contribution Toward Improving Conditions That Need Improving.

53 William Street,
New York, April 27, 1915.
To the Editor of the Kingston Freeman:

While I am not a resident of Kingston, I have been interested for a considerable time in anything which would tend toward its improvement. I have from time to time seen accounts in your paper of meetings of the Board of Trade or Chamber of Commerce in its effort to get new industries to come to Kingston. During the same time I have been using the O. & W. station at Fair street. It has always seemed to me that if any of these prospective business men came to Kingston over that road and saw the slime covered swamp, ash heaps and mosquito breeding holes so near to the station and directly in the rear of the best stores in the city, and adjacent to a place that is used by so many people, it might influence him more against moving to a place where such things are allowed to remain than the best line of talk the Chamber of Commerce could hand him. It may be that this property does not belong to any of the merchants whose stores adjoin it but possibly to a non-resident who does not care to have it improved at his own expense, but surely he would have no objection to having it improved for him. It would seem that if your Business Organizations were anxious to get people to Kingston, possibly one way they could do it would be to make the city a little more attractive, and from the point of view of an outsider this swamp-hole would be about the best place to start. It has always seemed to me that the impression one gets of a city on alighting at the station is the impression which remains with him longest. It would not take very much money or effort to make this an attractive place.

I hope some organization will take this matter up. I shall be glad to contribute a dollar towards making this an attractive place by filling in the swamp and removing the ashes from the rear of the stores, and should be glad to increase my obligation a further dollar and a half if after the filling in is done it is sodded over, a flower bed or two placed attractively on it, and a few trees and shrubs set out here and there and a permanent improvement made.

Yours very truly,
MILLARD DAVIS.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1153—A Practical Comfortable Undergarment. Ladies' Combination of Corset Cover and Drawers.

A practical feature of this model is the belt portion on the cover, which brings the fulness well above the waistline. The drawers are cut on new lines and with comfortable fulness. For lawn, cambric, muslin, crepe, batiste, silk or domest flannel, this design is very appropriate. It may be finished with embroidered scallops, or with lace and insertion. All over embroidery could be used effectively for this style. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: small, medium and large. It requires 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for a medium size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Ancient Ideas Concerning World.
Ages on ages of the growth of human reason lapsed before there was the least glimmering among the wisest of mankind of the rotundity of earth. Other ages were submerged in the unmeasured past before there came the crudest of scientific assertion of this rotundity. The greatest of philosophers of antiquity not so far distant believed the earth was flat; that it had this or that for a foundation; that foundation having this or that monster animal for its foundation, or that the whole rested on the sea.

You Must Hurry if You Would Profit by This BIG MONUMENT DISPOSAL

SUPERBLY DESIGNED STONES AT GREATLY LESSEND COST

It's an interesting task, this disposal of our surplus lines of beautiful Monuments. And it requires an organization like ours, perfected through the hard school of experience and development, to produce stones that assure success for our undertaking and a heaping measure of satisfaction to purchasers. We must have a fair return for our investment and you, the buyer, must be convinced beyond a doubt that purchasing all kinds of grave stones here now is profitable to you. Prices must be lower than at any other time or why the effort and expenditure? The success which this product-reducing event has already won is proof sufficient of our ability to overcome every obstacle that intervenes.

This affair is YOUR opportunity to make a splendid investment. But you must take advantage of it quickly, because it will be continued for only a short time. The Monuments are moving briskly, and soon we shall have sold a sufficient number to afford us the relief we are seeking. Then it will be back to former prices. A similar opportunity, with its specially reduced prices, may not again be presented for many years to come.

Ours is not a half-hearted attempt to reduce the number of Monuments on hand. We are determined to remedy the congested condition of our marble yard, and to accomplish our purpose we have driven the price knife in to the hilt. Come and select the Monument that strikes your fancy, then consult us as to price and terms and we'll guarantee to meet all your expectations.

The Range that Makes Cooking Easy

Glenwood

Buy Good Things

Glenwood Ranges are the product of New England's largest and best known foundry. They are designed by makers of life-long experience. They weigh more, are put together better and burn less fuel than most ranges. The castings are wonderfully smooth and easy to keep clean.

Owing to their sturdy construction and fine workmanship, they will stand hard usage, do better work and last much longer than the ordinary kind.

They are handsome, convenient and mechanically right—no modern features lacking. Smooth cast, Colonial design, plain finish, compact structure, big roomy ovens, easy working grates and countless other features.

They certainly do "Make Cooking and Baking Easy"

SCARCITY OF PLAYERS

Growth of Big Cities Shrinks
Crop of Youngsters.

Ball Fields of Ample Size, Within Walking Distance, Decrease as Rush of Building Begins to Swallow Up Vacant Lots.

One reason for the scarcity of classy young ball players, men good enough to shine in the major league, is the growth of the great cities. Considering the fact that baseball enthusiasm grows with the expansion of the big burges, and that the attendance has increased with the rise in population, this statement may look fantastic or impossible. Nevertheless, it is true, and unless the colleges or the farms begin to replenish the supply there will be a serious shortage in high-grade ball players within the next few years. You cannot have ball players unless you have a place to play them. And with the great cities expanding and incessantly bulging out their lines of settlement, where do the ball yards go?

Take Chicago for an example. A few years ago there were ball fields of ample size within walking distance for everybody. Huge vacant lots were abundant in every direction. On Saturdays and Sundays these lots were black with spectators, crowded so close that every foul tip copped some one in the countenance. The City League had several fine ball parks and did a prosperous business, even after the National League started Sunday games. Then the rush of building began to swallow up the lots. One by one the parks were seized; the lots passed out of existence by the dozen. A few more years and the amateurs could find room only by taking car rides of such length that they lost the whole day going and returning.

The big leagues, even if their parks are some distance out, draw the people who have leisure to go a few miles and spend an afternoon. The young amateurs cannot take the time—many of them cannot spend the car fare. In every city the story is the same—the march of population, the spread of building operations, has killed off the amateur game by removing the available spots whereon the amateurs could caper. And what does this mean for the future supply of the players?

RUDOLPH HAS ONE WEAKNESS

Boston Pitcher Is Very Sensitive About Bald Head and Imagines He's Growing Hair There.

Dick Rudolph, who is one of those Boston pitching persons, is absolutely certain that he can do what John D. Rockefeller and millions of other fellows have failed to do; in fact (he says) he's already doing it.

Dick, to be more explicit, says he is growing hair on a bald dome—on his own bald dome. And if you don't believe it, Dick will let you look at his head. He permitted us a look.

When told that it didn't look any different than it did last summer, Dick got rather peevisish.

"Don't, hey?" he snapped. "Well, lemme tell you that there's about eighty more hairs on my head than there was before I began using that treatment."

Dick, as very few people know, is bald-headed—very, very bald-headed. That's the main reason that you rarely see pictures of Dick that are minus a head covering. He's sensitive about that lack of hair, too.

Asked what the treatment consisted of, Dick replied:

"Well, it's a secret prescription. But it's a h-u. Friend of mine—a barber up in the Bronx—mixes it up. He told me to try it, but I was sore on trying hair restorers. I told him to go to blazes with his dope, but he kept on insisting that I use it and give it a two months' trial.

"Well, I finally took a whirl at it. I've been using the stuff for two

RECORD-BREAKING VALUES IN THIS Sacrifice Sale Rifton Rugs!

Here's a Rug buying opportunity that has never been paralleled in Kingston and perhaps it will not be duplicated in many years to come.

As is generally known, Dimick's Carpet Mills at Rifton discontinued operations last Saturday, with an immense supply of Rugs remaining unsold in the stock rooms. We saw here an opportunity to give homekeepers of Kingston and vicinity a Rug treat that would prove a memorable event. We and a buyer for a New York department store purchased the bulk of the Dimick mill Rug stock at practically our own prices, and now it's up to you to reap the benefit of our alert business stroke. Our display of Room Size Rugs should be seen by everyone to whom Rugs are a necessary detail of Spring refurbishing. Assortments in all grades and sizes are so large that appropriate selections may easily be made. After looking over our exhibit, you will have no trouble in deciding where the best Rug values you have ever seen are to be had. Owing to the ridiculously low prices at which these floor coverings are offered, we shall insist that ALL SALES MUST BE FOR CASH ONLY, NONE TO DEALERS and NONE ON APPROVAL.

In smaller Rugs, Carpetings, Linoleums, Oilcloths and Mattings our showing will also be found of interest from the standpoint of variety, patterns, colorings and matchlessly low prices. Buy now, because the sale is for a short time only.

ULSTER TO PLAY EASTMAN NINE

Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock Ulsters will meet the team of Eastman's Business College at the Athletic field. The Eastman's bunch is usually a husky collection of height and brawn and as a result manufacture good ball teams. They will make Ulster hustle to overcome them and this stunt the Tigers have resolved to do in order to avenge last Saturday's defeat. Everyone should turn out to have the honor of gazing upon the boys that held N. Y. M. A. to a 4-3 score.

The batting averages of the team show that Pehleman, Culloton and Downer are the only ones batting above the .300 mark while last season over one-half the team had that honor. The lads certainly are weak with the timber this year, the team average being .219. Pehleman has swatted with force and as a result owns a .571 average. Downer and Culloton are next with .375. Downer leads the base stealers.

Pehleman, Terwilliger, Shults and Kiernan are perfect in fielding, with Peyer close to them. The team has fielded well, the average being .909. The batting and fielding averages follow:

Batting.
	AB.	R.	H.	Av.	SB.
Pehleman	7	2	4	.571	1

Inherited Weaknesses.

When the causes of short life nowadays are counted up, it is found that most of the deaths are due to disease. Very few people die from old age. And the reason why people die from any one disease is that they have been weakened by other illnesses which they have had, or which have been handed down to them by their ancestors.

Getting dinner ready in July is just as comfortable as in November—if you use a FLORENCE OIL COOK STOVE.

The heat goes into the cooking, not into the kitchen. It does your work well and reliably, and keeps you comfortable. It requires less watching and regulating than a coal stove.

You can keep one or four burners at an intensely hot or merely simmering flame.

Come in and let us show you how these Florence Automatic Stoves work, how simple and reliable. No Wicks to burn out. No Valves to leak. Once started, each burner will keep going at the same power until you turn it out.

GERMAN SOLDIERS BEING OUTFITTED

GERMAN SOLDIERS BEING OUTFITTED IN BARRACKS BEFORE GOING TO FRONT.

Preparedness is the prime essential in the German army. It is said that when the order for mobilization of troops was given, every soldier knew where to go to find a complete outfit, uniform, boots, arms, accoutrements, ammunition, everything which he needed to take the field. Fresh German troops lined up in front of their barracks and ready to entrain from the front, are shown in this picture. Every man is wearing a flower in his button-hole, some of them have flowers thrust in the barrels of their rifles. A sergeant is distributing to them innumerable tools, little scoops or shovels, which the men can use in building up a tiny earthen shelter in front of them, when advancing in the open. The cumbersome kit worn by the soldiers may be seen in the man next to the end on the right. He wears a knapsack, encircled by a blanket roll and with a haversack suspended outside of that. The parcel tied at his waist is not a part of his kit—it consists of sweetmeats and home cooked articles of food, which he will carry with him.

TEACHERS MEET IN SAUGERTIES

On Monday District Superintendent Emily S. Burnett and the teachers of the rural schools held a conference in the Saugerties high school. Various topics were discussed and plans made for the agricultural crop contest which the children of the country schools will engage in during the summer, the judging and prize awarding to take place in Saugerties some time in October. At the same time there will be exhibits of the written work done in the schools this term. It is hoped that all the parents and taxpayers will take an interest in both of the exhibits.

A discussion on The Daily Program, and the teacher's plan and aims concerning it, was introduced by the district superintendent. This was followed by a discussion upon the use of the Ward Rational Reading Method in Rural Schools which was led by Mrs. Clarence Finger of Katsbaun.

Principal Gladding Sutton of Malden then introduced the subject of Care and Improvement of School Property.

The subject of The Management of a Large Rural School was introduced by Miss Augusta Emerick of West Camp followed by Jacob R. Rogers of West Saugerties.

A discussion upon The Teacher's Duty Regarding Medical Inspection was introduced by Principal John W. McMann of Glase.

Miss Nellie Wells Myer prepared and read a very interesting paper (full of suggestions) upon The Mission of Pollyanna, part of which is given below:

"Have you read Pollyanna?" What a useless question. Of course we have read it, all of us! And we are glad we did! What a dear little character Pollyanna is! And didn't she succeed in making a Pollyanna of you? Perhaps we are of the Nancy type at first, but if we are game, we improve, don't we?

Isn't you glad you are a teacher? I am. One can find so many things to be glad about. When Johnny comes to class with a luke-warm lesson, as usual, you can't feel very jubilant over that, but you can be glad that they are not all Johnny, and that this one Johnny helps you to appreciate all the more the bright pupils. When May comes to school, and with a face wreathed in smiles tells you that she is "going to a party tonight," be glad with her. When Arthur proudly announces that "Father's got a job now," be glad with him. On the other hand, when Jennie enters the room with a woe-begone face, replying to your "What's the matter?" with a doleful, "Mother is sick," what an opportunity to hunt for the glad part. You have found it. "How glad you must be that you are big and strong enough to help take care of her." And Jennie feels better right away. It won't be long before she finds out why she feels better, and she will then be searching for the glad things herself.

"O, yes," you say, "All very fine when the day flies along on happy wings, but how about the times when gladness seems nowhere?" Pull yourself together, and go home and read a chapter of Pollyanna, and then be glad you have another day to try again.

Of course, I welcome those Friday nights, but I am glad when Monday morning comes bringing a new week, and opportunity for new plans. How often at the end of a day's session do you face your pupils and tell them that you are glad they have all done as you suggested yesterday about some small matter; that you are glad that this or that went so well today that "we will try it again next week."

When the children feel particularly glad over something that has happened outside of school matters, and can scarcely keep their eager lips within bounds, have you told them that you share that gladness, thus showing them that you have some common interest with them other than school duties? That you can be glad with them and they with you?

O, teacher, who at the close of each day can find nothing for which you can be glad, regarding your school work, I'll tell you something: Be glad there aren't many like you, for your sake as well as the children's. I think James Whitcomb Riley must have been playing the game when he wrote:

For we know not every morning can be sad,
So, forgetting all the sorrows we have had,
Let us fold away our fears,
And put by our foolish tears,
And through all the coming years,
Just be glad.

Warren, Ill., April 28.—Mrs. A. D. Canfield of this city is the first woman mayor in the state of Illinois. She was elected to office here, in Warren, which has a population of 1,500. She is 74 years old, a widow, and runs a millinery establishment. In her campaign she promised to do away with pool rooms, the liquor traffic and gambling and to "clean up" Warren as it never had been cleaned up before.

A Physician's Opinion

A physician who uses Grape-Nuts in his family has recently asked his opinion of this food. He said—

"It is a concentrated, palatable, nourishing and healthful food. Sweetened slightly and moistened with good rich cream, Grape-Nuts makes a very toothsome dish."

There's a reason for these excellent qualities in Grape-Nuts. This food is made of whole wheat and barley, thoroughly baked and processed to render it easily and quickly digestible—generally in about one hour.

Grape-Nuts contains all the rich nutriment of the grains, including the phosphorus, iron, sulphur, and other mineral elements so necessary for proper nourishment of body and nerve cells. It's a healthful food, and economical also.

VETERAN RESIGNS AS STENOGRAPHER

MacDonald Van Wagener has resigned his position as stenographer for grand juries for Ulster county. He held this position for thirty years, having been appointed by Judge Clearwater when he was district attorney and continuing during the administration of that office by the Hon. John N. Vanderlyn, F. Arthur Westbrook, Judge Charles F. Cantine, Judge Frederick Stephan, Jr., and the Hon. William D. Cunningham. He has taken evidence in thousands of criminal cases and his work has never been questioned.

Mr. Van Wagener is a veteran of the Civil War and is a survivor of a squadron of the Second New York Cavalry, which at the second battle of Bull Run under the mistaken supposition that the Confederates were retreating, had the unique experience of charging with drawn sabres General Longstreet's corps of 20,000 men. It was a short, bloody, and most disastrous charge for the Union cavalrymen.

ELECTRIC STANDARDS.

Government Experts are Preparing Advice to P. S. Commissions.

Washington, D. C., April 28.—The bureau of standards, department of commerce, is preparing a circular on the subject of the standards for electric service which can be required by public service commissions or city officials from the electric light and power companies serving the public. This includes the subject of the quality and safety of service, and the accuracy of measurement by the instruments employed. It also deals with certain other public relations questions.

One of the most important elements of good lighting service is the use of suitable lamps. In recent years tungsten lamps have been so much improved in efficiency and durability that they are now used much more generally than are carbon or metalized carbon filament (Gem) lamps. Some years ago when tungsten lamps were relatively new, they were very fragile and had a relatively short life, and also were much more expensive than carbon or Gem lamps, and lighting companies which gave free renewals with carbon or Gem lamps could not afford to do so with tungsten lamps. In recent years, however, tungsten lamps have been so much improved and the selling price so much reduced that the cost of lamp renewals on the average is less with tungsten lamps than with carbon.

This is due to the fact that the life of the tungsten lamp is more than double that of the others. In actual tests it averages for the smaller sizes, fully three times as much, and in practice, allowing something for the greater strength of carbon and Gem lamps, it would probably be more than double. The cost is, however, less than twice as much as carbon lamps, and hence the average cost of lamp renewals would be less on the average with tungsten lamps than with the others. The efficiency of tungsten lamps is very much higher, so that there is scarcely any place where carbon or Gem lamps can now be used advantageously. Nevertheless, there are still a good many companies giving free renewals of these lamps to their customers, and this has the tendency to encourage the use of inefficient means of lighting.

One of the clauses of the proposed set of rules being drawn by the bureau of standards is the following: "Lamps furnished by utilities to customers without charge (free renewals) or at prices less than open market prices should be of such efficiency in watts per candle when used on the utilities circuits of standard voltage that the cost of light per candlepower hour to customers will not exceed the cost per candlepower hour when incandescent lamps are bought in the open market."

While some companies heartily approve of this proposal, it is possible that objection will be made by others, but it is believed that when the facts with regard to the efficiency and durability of tungsten lamps at the present time are fully appreciated by commissions and companies, there will be a general disposition to act in accordance with this suggestion.

No More Trees to be Cut.

In order to relieve the minds of all lovers of fine trees, many of whom have been exercised over the cutting of the pine trees on the new high school grounds, it may be said with authority, that no more trees are to be felled. The two last to come down, two pine trees, crooked and making it all but impossible to do a good piece of grading work right in front of the entrance, were cut down the other day, as it seemed an absolute necessity.

Many Cherry Blossoms.

Throughout the country the cherry trees are so loaded with blossoms as to seem one vast bouquet of white blossoms. On the new state road extending from New Paltz toward Newburgh, is an especially long stretch of fine cherry trees close to the highway, which presents an especially beautiful picture, and is very suggestive of the later beauty of the trees when red cherries in masses will take the place of the present whiteness.

Mr. Squire to be a Farmer.

Oliver D. Squire, who for the past twenty-three years has been with the Grand Union Tea Company, has resigned his position as manager of the company's local store at No. 318 Wall street and has been succeeded as manager by J. E. Scriven of Troy. It is understood that Mr. Squire intends to devote his time to his farm on Albany avenue and undoubtedly he will become one of the city's leading agriculturists.

WOMAN CIRCLES GLOBE TO WIN $5,000 BET FOR JACK LONDON.

New York, April 28.—In 1911, Jack London offered to wager $5,000 that a woman could work her way around the world as well as a man. His friends scoffed at the idea and finally the wager was made, the author taking the end that Mrs. Hilda Gilbert, who lived near him in California, rode "bad" horses and defied many other supposed limitations of her sex, could do it. Now no longer Mrs. Gilbert, but the Countess Sylvaino, she is back in New York. She already is widowed by the baron. She hobnobbed with a Zulu chief and made such a hit with him that she can always enter his harem. She was entertained by an Indian rajah. She married the count, Pierre Sylvaino, when he protected her when a man tried to tear her mask off in a Paris restaurant. She left him to continue her trip and when she arrived here received word he was dead. Jack London can now collect his $5,000 bet.

Hill and his men have gone on the mill at Sugar Loaf to saw. Will Osterhout from Middletown is employed by Rance Quick. Mr. Quick is having a porch added to his house.

Veal Hasbrouck is working for Jerome Cross at carpenter work. Steven Armstrong is painting Mr. Cross's house.

Harrison Ryan is busy moving into his mother's house.

John Hamilton will occupy his new home at Eureka this week.

Orin Fuller called on Rance Van Wagner Sunday.

Mrs. Mahlon Donivan and Harrison Ryan motored to Red Hill Saturday to see the former's father, who is very low at this writing.

Harvey Lake is now boarding at Mel DuBois's. Rocky Hill is too dull for Mr. Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Smith are rejoicing over the birth of a little daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. William Carlile have been on Red Hill several times lately to assist in the care of Mrs. Carlile's father, William Ryan.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Dayton have moved in one of Albert Sheeley's tenement houses.

Sarah Anthor is home from the hospital and is gaining nicely.

Ralph Hoornbeek spent Sunday with his parents on Lackawack Hill.

Clarence Bessack called on Mahlon Donivan Friday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Bessack are at a hospital for Mrs. Bessack's health.

Edna Kelder called on Mrs. M.

Donivan Sunday afternoon.

Sylvester Porter was in Ellenville Monday to deliver his maple syrup. He made over 90 gallons this spring.

ULSTER PARK

Ulster Park, April 28.—The Y. P. S. C. E. will hold a pound social Friday evening, April 30, at the home of Mrs. G. Kennoch. Refreshments will be served. Silver offering will be taken. Cream for sale. Anyone can bring a pound of something useful to be auctioned off. All welcome.

Miss Julia Churchwell is spending a few days with relatives in Walden.

Ernest Eckert spent Sunday with his sister in Poughkeepsie.

The W. C. T. U. held a meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. I. F. Page. The social hour was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Jennie Knips is spending some time with relatives in Brooklyn.

Mrs. C. Forbes and daughter Margaret spent Sunday with Mrs. I. F. Page.

Prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening at 7:30 at Mrs. G. Eckert's.

Miss Mabel Cross of New Paltz was the guest of Mrs. Grace DeGraft on Sunday.

Miss Angia Van Aken of New York is spending several days with her sister, Mrs. Harry Ellsworth.

Much sympathy is expressed for Mrs. Harry Ellsworth at the loss of her father, Theron Van Aken.

JUNIOR BASEBALL LEAGUE FORMED

A junior baseball league to play during May and June was organized on Tuesday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. with the following eight clubs: Schools No. 1, 5, 6 and 8, Red Monograms, Manor Stars, Lindsley Club and Student B class of the Y. M. C. A. Under the rules of the league no smoking will be allowed nor profanity and any player doing so will be barred from playing. Through the generosity of a local professional man, who did not want his name made public the winning team will be awarded a handsome silver loving cup and the members of the winning team will be presented with silver medals.

The Y. M. C. A. through the courtesy of John J. Cuneo has secured the use of the Athletic Field for Monday and Wednesday afternoons and Saturday morning and also on Tuesday and Friday evenings for baseball. The league will also use the lace mills grounds. The league season will open on Saturday morning and will close on June 19. The umpires will be Secretary George D. Beckwith, Physical Director Godfrey and A. Herb.

The schedule for the opening games which will be of seven innings each is as follows:

School No. 1 and School No. 6 at the Athletic Field on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

At 10 o'clock that morning School No. 8 and the Red Monograms will play at the field.

On the lace mill grounds Saturday morning at 9 o'clock School No. 5 will play the Manor Stars and at 10 o'clock Student B will play the Lindsley Club.

The entire schedule for the season will be printed later in the Freeman so that the teams and those interested in the players will be able to know when and where the teams will play during the season.

Ulster Gets its Share.

The delegates to the Constitutional Convention joyously attribute to the delegates from Ulster county occult and hypnotic faculties. It seems that of the 158 delegates, 129 wished to be made members of the judiciary committee which contains but seven members, and of this committee Judge Clearwater was appointed sixth by Senator Root, who also appointed him chairman of the important committee on prisons and the prevention and punishment of crime, and second on the committee upon education. He appointed Judge Sharpe a member of the committee on amendments and revision, on contingent expenses, and on counties, towns and villages, and Mr. Vanderlyn on the bill of rights, education and counties, towns and villages. All this in connection with the fact that District Attorney Cunningham was made the secretary of the convention at a salary of $5,000 a year, has caused the delegates from the other parts of the state to wonder why Ulster looks so large upon the convention horizon.

HURLEY.

Hurley, April 28.—The annual school meeting will be held in the school house, May 4, 1915, at 7:30 p. m.

A. G. DeWitt is visiting in Brooklyn.

James McPherson came down from Albany for the week end at the McPherson homestead.

Mrs. Anna Wynkoop is making her annual spring visit to Hurley.

Miss Mary Kline has opened up her house for the season.

The entertainment on Friday night, April 30, will be a most interesting affair. The choir of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church in Kingston, on invitation of Miss Lucy Merritt, their organist, will give us a musical treat that promises much pleasure to all. There will be, of course, ice cream and cake for the social hour following the musical program.

BRANCH.

Branch, April 28.—The few who visited at Uriah Satterlee's Friday night report a fine time. Miss Lizzie served a fine supper with ice cream.

Eugene Satterlee has gone back to North Rose after spending a few days at his home in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hughson called at Harry Cole's Sunday.

Howard Soles finished moving in part of Mrs. Barnum's house Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Van Valkenburg visited their daughter Sunday.

Miss Lucille Haynes spent from Thursday until Saturday with her friend, Miss Green who returned with her to her home in Claryville Saturday afternoon.

Fire in St. Paul.

By Telegram to the Freeman. St. Paul, Minn., April 28.—Two firemen were seriously hurt and nine others were overcome by smoke in a fire which destroyed the three story St. Paul public library early today. The fire started from an explosion in a small candy store near the library and for a time threatened to wipe out a large section of the Loop district. Firemen from Minneapolis aided the local department. The loss was $325,000.

CULTURE.

Culture looks beyond machinery. Culture hates hatred. Culture has one great passion—the passion for sweetness and light. It has one even yet greater, the passion for making them all prevail. It is not satisfied till we all come to a perfect man. It knows that the sweetness and light of the few must be imperfect until the raw and unkindly masses of humanity are touched with sweetness and light.—Matthew Arnold.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, April 28.—A large congregation was present at the M. E. Church Sunday evening to hear the Rev. E. E. Count speak upon the subject, "The Balkans or the Match That Set Europe Ablaze." Dr. Count for ten years was one of the leading Methodist missionaries in Bulgaria and the Balkan peninsula, and has recently returned to this country, and with his family are at present residing in Ellenville. Dr. Count's able and very instructive address was very heartily received. The Rev. W. H. Moser, pastor, was in charge of the service, and during the evening Miss Caroline Clark sang "Cast Thy Bread Upon the Water," and there were three hymns sung by the choir and large congregation.

Norman Coke-Jephcott, who is to be the conductor of the big musical festival to be held in Kingston in May, when Haydn's "The Creation" will be sung by a chorus of several hundred voices, was in Ellenville on Tuesday evening and held the first rehearsal in the M. E. Church lecture room. The chorus of twenty-five voices is under the direction of Frank J. Campbell, organist of the M. E. Church, and a number of the leading singers of Ellenville have joined the chorus.

Work is progressing rapidly under Contractor Weber for the new street which is to extend from Market street to Canal street bridge.

Miss Sarah Wood, teacher of mathematics at the high school, spent Saturday and Sunday with Middletown friends.

Mrs. Lewis Wager of Brooklyn is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Richards, on Malden Lane.

The residence of John R. DeVany on Center street is being repainted, which adds to the village improvements.

Jansen K. Hoornbeek is able to ride out, after being confined to his home the past three weeks by illness.

The members of the Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church are to meet with Mrs. E. A. Smiley at her home on Church street Friday afternoon.

The confirmation class of the Lutheran Church meets at the parsonage Wednesday and Friday evenings.

T. Johnson of Phenicia is a guest at William Hasbrouck's Pine Grove House.

Dr. W. W. Dees and Mrs. Dees, who were recent guests at the Scorsby Home returned to Little Falls and left by auto for Detroit, Mich., where they are to visit the doctor's brothers and from Detroit go by rail to California where they expect to remain for some time.

F. J. Kelly, who has been for some time at the Mitchell Inn at Middletown, has returned home and about May first expect to go to Mt. Meenahga for the summer season.

Dr. John W. Rapp has had the sidewalk in front of his new residence on Main street relaid and has graded up the lawn and otherwise improving. The lawn in front of the Electric Company's building, adjoining has been put in fine shape by Charles Fischer.

Louis A. Hoornbeek has had the residence and blacksmith shop he purchased of George Galbraith on North Main street repainted, which adds to the improvements of that part of the town.

Samuel Jollie and family have moved to their new home just completed on North Main street.

The grounds about the new school building on Maple avenue have been filled in and graded and a wide cement walk has been laid from the street to the building.

William Broas, who recently had a stroke of apoplexy, has far recovered as to go for a visit with relatives in Middletown.

Miss Walth of New York is visiting her sister Mrs. Erhardt Scherb and family on Canal street.

The 6th episode of the Exploits of Elaine entitled "The Vampire" in 2 reels drew a crowded house at the Casino Tuesday evening.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Reformed Church will hold a coffee social in the Church parlors Wednesday evening.

The April Calendar social under the direction of the Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church will be held in the Church parlors Friday evening. All members of the Calendar and friends are invited to be present. An enjoyable evening is looked for.

James B. White of Kerhonkson presented to the high school recently a complete set of The Encyclopaedia Britannica and English work which gives more elaborate definitions than the ordinary dictionary.

Through the kindness of Assemblyman LeFever and Byron S. Thornton, the high school has received some very valuable books on the native birds of New York state.

Four hundred packages of flower seeds sent to the school by ex-congressman McClellan have been distributed to the pupils, who will at once use the same to the beautifying of the school windows in boxes and beds around the grounds.

Made in U. S. A. Week Sale

WILL BEGIN MONDAY, MAY 3, and CONTINUE ALL WEEK

One million American women pledged to demand and buy "Made in U. S. A. Merchandise" is the aim of the "Woman's National Made in U. S. A. League." If the achievements of the last six months are a criterion as to the future it would seem that the reaching of this high mark is assured. The league was organized in Washington early last winter. It was the result of a spontaneous movement among the leading society women of the nation, capital to enlist every woman throughout the country in a nationwide demand for American made goods.

There are no dues incident to membership, each woman joining the league signs the following pledge:

"I pledge myself for the welfare of our country to demand and buy everything whenever possible made in U. S. A. and urge my friends to do likewise."

Progressive and public spirited merchants all over the United States will take up the slogan and during the week beginning Monday, April 3rd, will emphasize the importance of supporting home industries. "America for Americans."

Business confidence is gradually being restored. The "wise ones" tell us that every day brings us nearer to a greater national prosperity than this country has ever known. Help boost the good cause along by turning your attention toward purchasing goods made in U. S. A., in our own state, in our own city.

The merchants of Kingston are among the first and foremost in promoting and supporting every good enterprise. For "value received" the progressive home merchant through close application to business and careful management offers equal and frequently better values than can be secured elsewhere.

Our Made in U. S. A. Week Sale will begin Monday, May 3rd, and continue until Saturday night, May 8th. Many of our manufacturers and jobbers are helping to make the coming week's sale a great success.

OLIVEREA FOLKS ARE WIDE AWAKE

Farm Bureau Meetings Well Attended and a Plan for Community Advertising Has Been Adopted.

Olivera residents turned out in large number Tuesday evening to attend a meeting held at the Olivera school house under the auspices of the Ulster County Farm Bureau.

The meeting was addressed by Manager W. H. Hook of the Farm Bureau, whose subjects were "The Rotation of Crops" and "Green Manures for Soil Improvement."

In regard to rotation of crops, Manager Hook pointed out that it helps.

First, in cradicking weeds. Second, in controlling insect pests. Insects which attack one crop are not attracted by a different crop, and insect pests which may appear one year will not thrive the following year if the nature of the crop is changed.

Third, by affording opportunity for growing leguminous plants to enrich the soil by means of their nodules which contain bacteria which transform nitrogen from the atmosphere into soil nitrogen which is necessary for plant use.

Fourth, by using up the different kinds of plant food for the soil. Different crops use and require different proportions of plant food, and by rotation of crops the different varieties of plant food are consumed and there is no accumulation of one kind of food in the soil.

Fifth, by helping in lessening the toxic poisons given off by the plants. The same crop planted year after year results in an accumulation of the poisons given off by plant life, and in time the soil has an accumulation of poisons which results in destruction of the crop, and causes crops to "run out."

Green Manures.

Cover crops which are ploughed under give quickly available plant food. The plant food is formed quickly in the soil and when the seed is planted the nourishment it needs is ready for it.

The land can be kept busy all the time with but slightly increased labor. Good cover crops are rye, alfalfa, the various kinds of clover and vetch. Vetch is a comparatively new crop. It can be cut like any other crop and can be used for hay. It grows something like sweet peas, and although unsuitable for other purposes is best adapted for ploughing under.

Another Meeting at Olivera.

It was decided to hold another meeting at Olivera on Thursday evening, May 6, when R. S. Moseley of the poultry department of Cornell University, in company with Manager Hook of the Farm Bureau, will give a talk on successful poultry raising.

Poultry raising, as everyone in the Catskills knows, is one of the farm industries vital to the prosperity of the Rondout and Esopus valleys. Poultry is raised largely to furnish the table of the hotels and boarding houses, and poultry and eggs are also sold extensively outside of the immediate market where they are produced. A large and profitable meeting is expected on May 6.

Will Advertise the Valley.

The Olivera Local Farm Bureau Club, which was recently organized, is preparing plans for community advertising of the hotels, boarding houses, bungalows, farms and cottage sites, which are situated in the Big Indian Valley, both at Big Indian and Olivera.

Already the proprietors of a number of the big hotels and boarding houses have subscribed liberally for an advertising campaign to be conducted through the newspapers and it will not be long before the Big Indian valley, with all its advantages for comfortable living, wonderful natural beauties and special advantages will be known to a greater extent than ever before. It is confidently expected that the campaign to be conducted by the Olivera Local Farm Bureau Club will result in attracting many people to the valley who have never visited it, with resultant development and prosperity for the people of that valley and of much of the surrounding territory.

MT. TREMPER.

Mt. Tremper, April 28.—The funeral of Mrs. Sarah DeVall was held at Willow Methodist Church on Wednesday. A number of relatives from here attended.

The Rev. R. P. Ingersoll and Mrs. Ingersoll with some friends of Rhinebeck enjoyed an auto trip here on Tuesday and stopped at L. S. Randall's.

Walter Rion has returned home from a trip to Doe Run, Mo., and other points west. He enjoyed his trip very much.

Waldo Boerker of Brooklyn is spending a few days at W. A. Sylvester's and while here is engaged in setting out evergreen and fruit trees on his farm here.

The funeral of Mrs. Cora Jones, daughter of Mrs. C. P. Smith, was held at the Reformed Church on Sunday and was largely attended. The interment was in the Hudler Cemetery. Mrs. Jones had come a few days before to visit her mother and on Wednesday was suddenly stricken with apoplexy and died in a few hours. Her relatives and friends were greatly shocked by her sudden death and much sympathy is extended to them in their sudden bereavement.

Mrs. John Davidson and little grandson, Herbert Ferris, of Williamsbridge, N. Y., are spending a couple of weeks with Mr. and Mrs. James DeVall.

A large crowd gathered at the hall Monday night as bills were up for a moving picture show, but the man and outfit failed to appear.

Miss Clara Relyea is at Winnisook Lodge for a few weeks.

Frank Karl of Kingston was here on Sunday.

The hot weather makes one realize summer is near.

Rain is needed very badly. Everyone is busy planting.

WOODSTOCK.

Woodstock, April 28.—The Sunday school convention held in the M. E. Church last Tuesday was well attended at the evening session. The Rev. Mr. Gulick of Ashokan, county superintendent, was present and addressed the convention in the afternoon. The Rev. D. N. F. Blakeney of Pine Hill gave a very inspiring address in the evening.

Frank Silliman and sister, Dora, also Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Burroughs, all of Hobart, spent some time last week at the M. E. parsonage.

The lecture on the "War in Europe" was well attended last Wednesday evening and the many war scenes were very impressive.

Washington Elwyn and wife, who have been visiting their son and daughter in New York, have returned home.

Lewis Brover has purchased a new Ford runabout.

A new Pitts steam roller came into town Monday evening. The town board voted to hire the steam roller to work the roads of the town for this year, paying at the rate of ten dollars a day for every day the roller is in service. At the election this fall the proposition will be voted on as to whether the town will purchase the roller on the condition that the amount paid in rent this year be used in part payment for the roller.

The Sunday school teachers' training class will take the state examination next Monday evening in the basement of the Reformed Church. This examination will be on the Old Testament and will be in writing. The class has been preparing for it through the winter and spring.

Commission's Time Extended.

Judge Hasbrouck has granted an order extending for eight months the time of the Hon. William M. Chadbourne of New York city, Cornelius L. Leffler of Rosendale and J. Charles Snyder of this city, who were appointed commissioners for the trial of Parcel No. 868, Ashokan Reservoir, owned by the Ulster & Delaware Bluestone Company. The extension is for the purpose of allowing the commissioners to make and file their report.

A MYSTERY

By F. A. MITCHEL

Billings was a commercial traveler. Troubled with insomnia, he would of ten get out of bed in the middle of the night and walk the streets. One night he was walking thus in a quaint old town in New England. There were houses in the place fully 200 years old. Billings was an educated man and appreciated the antiquity about him. He fancied one house to be the old tavern and that the bar was still there concealed by a curtain. Another house must have been that of a nabob, for the front door was elaborately made.

Billings wandered about in the moonlight wondering about the different places and occurrences that might have taken place in them. Apart from the rest was a house which both from its construction and tumbledown appearance must have been older than any he had yet passed. Whether it was occupied or not he could not tell, for like all the rest of the houses it was dark. Billings stopped before the front door to admire it, its side lights, its arched lights above and the antique head work on it, wishing that he could remove it and use it on his own house in his home city.

Suddenly the door opened. There was no sound from the old hinges and it seemed that the door moved of itself. But in another moment a face appeared in the opening, the face evidently of a young girl, though since she was in shadow Billings could not see her distinctly. She beckoned to him, but did not speak. He drew near her and she whispered:

"A tragedy has occurred here. A man has been stabbed, I and my sister are alone. I wish you would come in and help us."

Billings had no inclination for what was asked of him, but the girl's voice was so soft, a nearer view showed her so comely, that he entered the vestibule. There was no light, and when the door was closed behind them it was pitchy dark. The girl took Billings' hand to guide him, and a cold chill followed her touch, which was icy cold.

"Will you strike a light?" he asked.

"Oh, no. I would not attract the attention of the watch for the world." Billings would have retreated, but was ashamed to do so. Besides, the cold grip on his hand would not be easily shaken off. He suffered himself to be led through a spacious hall and up a winding staircase. On reaching an upper hall the girl opened a door and led the way into a bedchamber.

The windows were open, and the moon, which was an hour high, cast a flood of light into the room, illuminating with its pale light a four post bedstead with canopy overhead and valance beneath. Beside it knelt a woman, and on it lay a man, who appeared to be dead. The light of the moon gave a ghastly hue to his features, and he was stiff and stark.

It seemed to Billings that the costumes of both the women corresponded with the antique furniture. Both wore white caps on their heads and kerchiefs around their shoulders and across their bosoms. Billings stood looking on the scene in wonder and horror. "We must remove the body before day," said the girl.

"Why so?" asked Billings, scarcely knowing what he said.

"He was killed. He who killed him was a near relative. He has fled, but should the tragedy be discovered he would be pursued, and if captured we should have to endure another death. Feeling that we must have a man to help us and seeing you from the window about to pass the house, I stepped down and called you. You will not betray us, will you?"

"Certainly not. But—"

"Oh, don't say that you will not help us. We are two women with no man to rely on. You and I can carry the body to a secret closet. We can put it in there for the present, and it can be removed later."

Billings' brain was in a whirl. The girl went to the bed, drew away the woman kneeling beside it, and taking the lower part of the body motioned to Billings to take the heavier part. Then the two carried it to an adjoining wainscoted room. The girl touched a spring in the wall. A panel rolled aside, revealing an empty space. They threw the body in, closed the panel and left.

The next thing Billings remembered was standing without the door of the house, hanging on to an iron railing. He seemed to have awakened from a dream. He staggered into the street and looked up at the house. It was dark and silent. Then he ran as if to leave his frightful experience behind him. On reaching his hotel he went to his room and threw himself on the bed. In the morning he awakened, feeling as if all his strength had oozed out during the night.

During that day he made inquiries about the house he had visited and was told that it was called the Berwick house, from the family that had lived in it a century or more before. It had been empty for years.

Billings related his experience to several persons and persuaded them to go to the house with him and force an opening to the closet where he had helped deposit the body. They did so and found the skeleton of a man.

What the tragedy had been no one knew, nor had any one ever heard. Evidently it had been concealed. There was, however, a tradition of one of the Berwick family who had mysteriously disappeared.

RUBY ROSS GOODNOW

CAN'T BE IDEAL HOMES, SAYS MISS RUBY GOODNOW.

New York, April 28.—There can be no ideal homes, there can be homes of individuality and distinction, says Miss Ruby Ross Goodnow. "A home and its decoration are dependent on so many contingencies that no two houses can be alike if they are to be ideal in any way," she says. "One cannot devise a model, ideal home for first and foremost one must consider the personality of the tenant. I do not think a person can have more than one real home. If I had a beautiful home in the country I should put my prized effects there, my city home would merely be a makeshift, a place to stay."

Miss Goodnow believes that a dining room is not an essential. Instead she advocates a large living room and dining in it.

Court Opens Next Monday.

The May term of supreme court will convene on Monday afternoon at the court house with Judge Alcen Chester presiding. There are one hundred and thirty-two cases on the calendar, and there will be a grand and a trial jury in attendance. It is expected that the Van Aken murder case will be tried at this term of court, although the case is not on the calendar.

Depressing.

No matter how young a man may be in his sympathies, he can't help feeling more or less depressed, as he gets along to between forty and fifty, when he walks down a fashionable residence street and sees some of the samples of the future fatherhood and motherhood of the race. —Columbus (Ohio) Journal

TEXAS COMPANY TO SELL OIL HERE

The board of fire commissioners at the regular monthly meeting held on Tuesday evening granted permission to the Texas Company to locate a distributing plant for oil and gasoline on the property of the Kingston Woodworking Company on Deyo street near the West Shore railroad, and transacted considerable routine business.

At the last meeting of the board Clerk B. J. Hornbeck was instructed to take up the matter of registering the new motor fire truck that has been ordered with Albany and ascertain what steps were necessary to be taken. A communication received by him from Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo was read in which it was stated that under the motor vehicle law of the state it was not necessary to register the truck and that it was not necessary to obtain a chauffeur's license in order to drive it.

Chief Chipp filed his report for the month. There have been fifteen alarms of fire rung in. The report of Henry Elling, superintendent of the fire alarm system, was received and filed.

The secretary reported that there was a balance on hand in the treasury to the credit of the board of $18,854.81.

Teller & Tappen were the lowest bidders and were awarded the contract to supply the engine houses with coal. Their bid was $6 per gross ton for 52 tons of egg and 4 tons of stove coal, and $6.25 per gross ton for 4 tons of chestnut coal.

The Central Hook & Ladder Company reported the election of Adam L. Mattice and Nathan Palist to membership in the company, and the Weiner Hose Company reported the election of Leroy Hutton, Donald Kaplan, Raymond L. Daun and John Kain to membership.

The board granted permission to the Central Hook & Ladder Company to serve lunch to Hose Company No. 1 of Catskill on the day of the firemen's parade during convention week in this city in June, and a section of the basement at the central fire station will be given over to the company in which to serve lunch.

The payroll and bills were audited and the board then adjourned.

Motorcyclist Injured.

Ode Rich of No. 215 O'Neil street, while riding on a motorcycle on Monday evening, was knocked down by an automobile from the Ashokan garage which turned in Broadway from Albany avenue. Mr. Rich received a deep cut over his right eye which was sowed up by Dr. Norwood, and was also badly bruised about the body. The motorcycle was badly damaged.

MacQueen Lecture Tonight.

This evening at the Y. M. C. A. ## MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, April 28.—Those who figured that Connie Mack was a master boob when he sold Eddie Collins for a king's ransom are wondering now if Connie didn't pull a master trick.

It looked as if Connie never could get a man who would come within a million miles of filling Collins's place at second, but Connie got Larry Lajoie who is jamming the ball well over the 300 mark and who is fielding with all of his old time brilliance. He doesn't cover quite as much ground as Collins did, but he covers a very large portion of that infield.

And as to Collins—

Well, Edward Trowbridge isn't doing any scintillating stunts this spring. He seems to be in a slump. Up to the present he has been hitting them "where they are," while in the days old he clubbed 'em to those portions of the lot "where they ain't." Collins, briefly, hasn't struck his batting stride, and those who expected him to jump right into his White Sox uniform and knock all the boards off of the fence have been disappointed.

Collins is fielding in well, but his fielding to-date hasn't been any more startling than Lajoie's. Perhaps "Columbia Eddie" is a bit off color just now and will round into old-time shape in a few weeks. But the Windy City fans won't forget their disappointment of the present.

Collins would have won the White Sox fans favor for all time had he treated himself to a line get-away a field and at bat, even had he slipped back a little later. The first impressions usually are the lasting ones—even with baseball fans. As it is, Collins must do some amazing stunts later on to remove the poor impression gained from his poor start.

Connie may regret Collins's departure some day, but right now he doesn't. He has in Lajoie a man who is hitting far above Collins's mark. He has a man who is fielding as well as Collins, and more important than anything else, he has that $25,000 or $50,000 in real, regular cash that was paid to him for his onetime second sacker.

Collins normally is at least 33 per cent more valuable to a ball club than is Lajoie because of his greater speed afield and on the bases. But what does it profit a team if it has a man who can run 100 yards in 10 seconds if he never gets a chance to do any running? Collins is a whirlwind on the bases, but he hasn't been on the base often enough to date to exercise his pedals.

The White Sox fans hoped pennant hopes this spring. About 33 per cent of them hoped a man based on Collins hitting 'em out for about 333 all year. Since Collins hasn't been doing any demon stunts at the bat, the hopes are not so high as they were. But the White Sox folks needn't despair. Unless there is something radically wrong with Collins he ought to do a come-back—and soon. He's a natural hitter and an occasional slump is a natural happening.

THE UP-TO-DATE CLOAK MFG. CO. MANUFACTURER'S COATS AND SUITS SALE ON

On Thursday, April 22d, our firm received a special delivery letter from a high class Suit and Coat Manufacturer, in which he wrote that he had on hand about 180 suits and about 200 black and blue coats, made up in poplins, gabardines and serges, that he wanted to close out at a price, and realizing that we had the outlet and the ready cash would be glad to entertain a proposition from us. To make a long story short they were bought at our price and will be put on sale beginning Thursday, April 29th, and will be on sale

Thursday, Friday and Saturday

This must be done in three days, so the first customers will have the pick of the lot. The suits are in putty, navy, black and Belgian. The coats are in black and navy only.

INTERESTING STATISTICS.

Trade of the United States With Other American Countries.

"Trade of the United States with other American countries, 1913-1914" is the title of a booklet just published by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce. American manufacturers and producers in all lines will find this document of practical value in determining the kinds, quantities, and values of merchandise exported from the United States to each country of the Western Hemisphere, with annual purchases amounting to two billion of dollars.

The aggregate value of our exports to all American countries in the fiscal year 1914 was 553 million dollars, 528 1/2 million going to North American and 124 1/2 million to South American countries. Canada buys more goods from us than all other countries of the new world combined, and the principal articles making up that trade are set forth in the volume above described, the list of goods including nearly all lines of manufactures from abrasives to zinc and totaling $345,606,000. Cuba, our second largest American market, bought $69,000,000 worth of our products; Argentina, third in rank, $45,000,000; Mexico, $39,000,000; Brazil, $30,000,000; Panama, $23,000,000; and Chile $17,000,000, in round terms; while all other American countries bought our products to the value of $85,000,000 in the fiscal year 1914.

Of equal interest to those seeking information regarding sources of our imported raw materials and footstuffs is the section of the book which shows the various classes of merchandise sent to our ports by the countries in question. No important article is omitted from consideration, whether Canadian cattle, ores, and pulp; Cuban sugar; Mexican oil and fibers; Brazilian coffee and rubber; Chilean nitrates and copper; or Argentine corn, hides and meats. The American countries showing the largest imports into the United States were: Canada, 161 million dollars; Cuba 131 million; Brazil 101 million; Mexico 93 million; Argentina, 45 million; Chile, 26 million, and the Central American Republics, 13 million dollars. Our total imports from all American countries last fiscal year aggregated $650,000,000 in value, of which $427,000,000 was the value of those from North America.

"Miscellaneous Series No. 23," the official designation of the booklet, will be sold by the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, and by branch offices of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce at New York, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans, Atlanta, San Francisco, and Seattle, at the nominal price of 20 cents per copy.
